We . . . see . . . that the business man is to mature: to mature psychologically as well as physically, to mature along the line of what is unique in him and what he healthily shares with all his fellows, and to continue the maturing process throughout his life. — Overstreet.

We have yet to perfect our freedom. For our task we must understand that a free society is a society of people mature in human relations: people who will assume the responsibility of managing themselves; who will help others enjoy the same responsibility. Such a society will draw out self-reliance and self-expression; it will create unselfishness and understanding of others. In school we can attain maturity through determination and education. To maturity we dedicate the ECHO of 1951.
Miss Toner stands before us still as an ever-living example of selfless and inspired giving. She took pleasure in our pleasure, in our activities and interests. She stressed personality and character formation along with the subjects she taught. She gave herself to others in her cheerfulness and generosity. She was our teacher and our friend.

By practicing forceful and helpful leadership in school, we can better develop and encourage guidance toward maturity.
The American nation is now in a position of world leadership. Upon that leadership largely rests the fate of the free peoples of the world. To meet the attendant responsibilities of this important role in the family of nations requires a well-informed, mature people.

Our great system of free education, our numerous media of communication, and our easy cultural exchange, all tend to develop an enlightened citizenry. This gradual accumulation of knowledge by a self-governing people will develop the maturity necessary to enable this country to direct wisely its international affairs in the days ahead.
The dedication of the 1951 ECHO to a "maturity in human relations" is certainly timely. Headlines of the day concerning local, state, national, and international problems emphasize this as a basic need of mankind.

Though we may not realize it, though we may choose to ignore it, this is perhaps the greatest challenge to mankind. In this technical, complex, interdependent world, our very existence may depend upon our willingness and skill to mature in human relations.

Your life and your work at Webster High have been experiences in human relations. If you have taken advantage of the varied opportunities you should have had a maturing experience in human relations.

It is our challenge that you use every opportunity to continue that maturing; it is our hope that you are entering into an era when all men will bend every effort to mature in their dealings with one another.

"Long-distance, please."

PLANNING HIS VACATION
Well, you can see for yourself!
We have many opportunities for gaining and developing maturity at Webster High. Knowledge and the ability to think and reason clearly are acquired in the classroom. Leadership and co-operation are necessary in student council, athletics, and clubs. The expression of thoughts and ideas is practiced in the school publications. The habit of accepting the responsibility for one's own conduct is formed through the guidance system. Very few activities in high school are mandatory. We develop maturity by our determination to use our personal talents in an activity at school and by the exercise of unselfishness and thoughtfulness in our relationships with fellow students.

We believe that by gaining and developing maturity in human relations in high school, we shall more ably shoulder the responsibilities of a democratic way of life.

"Well. I don't know who to call on here . . ."

The Senior Student Council worked actively during the year to promote the general welfare of Webster High. Indeed, the school was overwhelmingly grateful to the council for sponsoring the annual Magazine Sales Campaign. As the council members urged the students to sell subscriptions, and made high selling records themselves, the "sales thermometer" climbed steadily to the $8,100 mark, making this year's campaign the most successful so far. With the same idea of serving the students, the council took care of the Lost-and-Found, and supervised the cheerleaders. It also had a party for new students in January, helped the American Problems class carry on a mock election in November, sponsored a clothing drive for needy children, and held a Pep Rally complete with parading and a roaring bonfire before the Turkey Day Game. Student Guidance Week was sponsored by the council to familiarize the students with the Guidance System. Hello Day, and Basketball and Wrestling Weeks were planned to promote school spirit. The school enjoyed watching Webster talent compare with that of other schools in the Inter-School Talent assemblies, planned by the council. And everyone had a wonderful time at the Student Council Dance Carnival which reaped profits for all the participating clubs. All these things certainly promoted Webster's welfare in 1950-51.

The two-house council system, initiated last year, was used again. The two councils met during the fifth hour on alternate days. Eighteen students from each grade were elected by their classmates. The officers were Louie Booth and Lee Carlson, chairmen; Meryl Schmidt and Joan Harrison, secretaries; John Shillington, treasurer; Dick Dunbar and Erv Dunkel, sergeants-at-arms. Mr. Brucker was the sponsor.
Running in the halls, cutting into the lunch line, and causing a disturbance in assemblies are some of the offenses for which a student can be reported to the Guidance Council. The council members discuss the offense with the offending student and offer advice so he will not make the same mistake in the future. The Guidance Council does not punish any offender. However, if someone is reported three times, his parents are asked to accompany him to a meeting of the council. The purpose of the Guidance Council is to advise students reported to it by the student guides.

The Guidance Council consists of four seniors, three juniors, and three sophomores, elected by their respective grades. Lee Carlson and Louie Booth, the school's presidents, acted as advisers for this year's council.
The Junior Student Council had the full support of the twenty-nine homerooms this year. It did a splendid job on the magazine sales campaign and on bundle day. It also sponsored the Junior School talent assembly, which was considered a big success by everyone.

The council was headed by Pete La Chapelle, president; Bob Wurtz, vice-president; Julie Klasing, secretary-treasurer; and Miss Brantley, the sponsor. This group very aptly managed the council and did a good job of governing the junior school.

Miss Brantley and Mr. Amelon, with the help of the council, were in charge of the monitors, both in the halls and in the lunchroom. Several groups of council members helped serve at the P-T. A. open house and a P-T. A. social meeting.

The council worked hard this year and well deserves the support it was given by the junior school.
Maturity of mind can be reached through determination to understand and know the basic truths of life.

SENIOR SCENES
In addition to participating in many school activities, the juniors made their senior and post-high-school plans this year. Each student had a conference with Miss McClain, the counselor of the junior grade, to discuss his grades and class standing, and to plan his future program. Also, most students participated in the College Day and Career Day programs, in which they counseled with representatives from the college or career of their choice.

Two committees were chosen: the Senior Ring Committee and the Junior Prom Committee. The Ring Committee, headed by Joyce DuMont and guided by Mrs. Bodman, took care of the selecting of the senior rings. The Junior Prom Committee, headed by Ray McCallister and sponsored by Mrs. Weirich, planned the dance which was held May 19th in the Roberts Gymnasium. The music was furnished by Stan Dougherty.

The junior-senior game was an exciting one, which the seniors won by a narrow margin. The members of the eleventh grade were also well represented in such activities as the A Cappella Choir, G. A. A., language clubs, varsity football, basketball, and baseball, The Echo, and The Webster Echo. One junior, Jean Williams, was elected to lead cheers at the games.

The juniors elected Guy Kahmann, president; Tom Payne, vice-president, and Bill Paden, secretary-treasurer. The advisers of this grade were: Mrs. Bodman, Mrs. Weirich, Miss Prieur, Mr. Wehling, Miss Buhrlle, Mr. Jones, Mr. Nail, and Mr. Trotter.

Juniors

September saw the sophomore class busily organizing itself as do the upper school classes. This activity was a result of the change which occurred when the students prepared to participate in a program broader than they had previously experienced.

Many activities were open to the sophomores for the first time. They voted for kings and queens, took part in the senior school extracurricular life, and participated in student government by electing representatives to the Senior School Student Council.

A class dance was held in March under the able direction of these committee members: Bill Grone and Jack Stohldrier, tickets: Alan Klein and Anne Jaudon, refreshments: Leo Hollenbeck and Patsy May, decorations.

Mr. Ogle, class counselor, received splendid cooperation from Jack Stohldrier, president: Bill Grone, vice-president; and Margery Burger, secretary-treasurer.
Freshmen

Freshmen always enjoy a superior position at Webster. As sophomores, they sink to insignificance, but these ninth-grade students are the big wheels of the Junior School.

This year's freshmen elected Elmer Schwarz, president, and Roger Hemminghaus, vice-president, for their leaders.

The average ninth grader's program included a foreign language, English, social studies, algebra, and vocal or instrumental music.

Freshmen

Freshman support was given to many extra-curricular activities. Many boys went out for "C" football and "C" basketball. The girls were interested in after-school sports. Also active were the Spotlighters, a junior school dramatics club, and the Sutters' Dancing Class. The class had time to enjoy parties throughout the year also.

Miss Webster, as sponsor of the freshmen, helped to plan individual programs, and then helped to work out class activities.

Eighth Grade
Enthusiasm and high spirits identified the eighth-grade students as they entered Webster for their second year. Having passed the wonderment of the seventh grade, they were ready to assert themselves in the Junior School.

Early this year the class elected Steve Riggins, president, and Jim Pender, vice-president. The nine homeroom presidents, who were Pat Barrett, Lynette Beall, Dick Boenaker, Noreen Halter, John Hartman, Marion Hukill, Van Morrow, Paul Stein, and Diane Williams, made up the eighth-grade cabinet. Miss Jackson was counselor for this class.

The students participated in many social activities. They had a square dance club, a miniature railroad club, and a dramatics club. Foremost was Sutter's Dancing Class, led by Mrs. Laura Sutter. This year two hundred twenty-five students were enrolled in the dancing class, the largest Webster group ever to trip the light fantastic under Sutter tutelage.

In the spring the eighth graders had conferences with their counselor and parents. The purpose of these conferences was to help the students plan their high school career which they will officially enter next fall.

Lawrence, Madley, Nelson, Klasing, Hutcheson, Harper, Osborne, LaRoche, Jordan, Maize, Kun, Hunneke, Hawkins.

Since they were new to high school, the seventh graders did not elect class officers, but each homeroom elected a president. They were: David Fox, Mary Beth Heath, John Lee, Dorothy Myers, Ronald Roam, Walter Serth, Karen Sundstrom, George Thorpe and Jerry Wolff.

In the seventh grade students take a required course. They have "bloc", which is a combination of English, social studies and spelling, mathematics, one semester each of crafts, general science or speech, and vocal or instrumental music, alternating with gym. During the year the girls became acquainted with intramural sports, and formed an active part of the teams.

The parents and students organized several class parties during the year. These lively affairs were student planned and directed with help from the parents. The parties were great successes, with movies, contests, and other forms of entertainment.

Miss Epps, the class counselor, had a big job on her hands trying to acquaint two hundred and seventy-nine boys and girls with high-school life, an exciting and different experience for every one of them.

Better clean that locker.
Self-reliance, consideration for others, and creative determination will gain for us a mature citizenship in the community, in the nation, and in the world.
As the saying goes, the law has a long arm. You can tell by a glance at the informal picture that in the Junior School the arm of the law this year was not only long, it was many-fingered and highly efficient as well.

It was the duty of the monitors, as the junior student guides are called, to see that reasonable order was maintained in the lunchroom and in the halls at noon. The students usually cooperated with the boys, for if they didn't . . . . But trouble rarely occurred, because the boys were a selected group and knew their job well.

The monitors were again this year under the direction of the Junior School Student Council and were sponsored by Miss Mary E. Brantley. The group was captained by the President of the Junior School, who this year was Pete La Chapelle.
Buzz Books! Where? Webster halls echoed with this cry one day last fall as the student phone books published by the Hi-Y made their annual appearance. Another publicized activity of the Hi-Y was the sponsorship of the traditional Friendship Dance. The Kirkwood and Webster Hi-Y's cooperated in sponsoring this perennial favorite. The group also sent several representatives to the Hi-Y Model Legislature at Jefferson City. As a final showing of its purposes of furthering good citizenship, the club donated substantial sums to a local welfare organization and to the Webster Y. M. C. A.

Hi-Y met once a week under the sponsorship of Bob Kasper. The officers for the first semester were: Don Ayers, president; Dick Fischer, vice-president; John Shillington, secretary-treasurer; and Louis Booth, chaplain. The second semester officers were: John Shillington, president; Bob Dubose, vice-president; Dick DeLong, secretary-treasurer; and Walter Herrscher, chaplain.

The Girls' Athletic Association was organized for senior school girls interested in sports. The purpose of this organization is to promote good sportsmanship and conduct among girls participating in sports.

This year has been a busy one for G. A. A. The activities started early in October with the girls standing through many freezing afternoons to sell hot dogs at the football games.

The club introduced three outstanding "new deals" this year: the sponsorship of the newly organized Bowling Club, a picnic which was given in October, and a square dance for the members and their dates. The year's activities also included the initiation of new members and the Dads' Night. The G. A. A.'s annual Kampus King Dance was given in the spring. At this backward dance a senior boy, elected by senior high girls, was crowned Kampus King.

The last social event of the year was the Award Banquet at which many awards were presented and next year's officers introduced.

The officers for this year were: June Schumacher, president; Susan Crawford, vice-president; Carol LaRoche, secretary; Gail Van Reen, treasurer; Shirlee Gunlock, historian. Much of the success of the year is due to the help received from the sponsors of the organization, Miss Daniel and Mrs. Schapp.

Conventus Latinus

Those silent, white-robed figures roaming the halls one afternoon last fall weren't ghosts of Roman citizens. No, indeed! The very much alive Virgil girls, attired in stylish togas, were preparing to entertain the Latin Club. Such entertainment furthered the knowledge of Latin painlessly. The club also enjoyed a Hallowee'en party, a talk by Representative Tom Curtis, and a Christmas party. Christmas was made meaningful for the club by the collection of sixty-two dollars for Farmington Orphanage. In the spring, the club celebrated St. Valentine's Day and Latin Week, and held its annual banquet.

The officers were: Bob Dubose, president; Jane Coleman, vice-president; Pat Krebs, secretary; Meryl Schmidt, treasurer; and Susie Littledale, historian. Miss Farmer sponsored the organization.
This year's attractive three and four-page issues of the Latinus Rumor published monthly were a far cry from the Latinus Rumors of bygone days. In contrast with the neatly typed and blocked pages of today, the first issue was hand-written and printed on a hectograph. This style soon passed out of the picture as long sheets of paper, printed on both sides, became the vogue. Not until a few years ago was the current style adopted. This year's issues consisted of artistically designed covers, interesting, newsy articles and stories, jokes, and crossword puzzles. The Latinus Rumor is a remarkable institution at Webster, since it is the only known Latin paper published in Missouri.

Co-editors Meryl Schmidt and Jane Coleman, and the sponsor, Miss Farmer, deserve a vote of thanks for continuing this traditionally fine publication.
The N. F. L. this year achieved an enviable honor when it placed higher in the state tournament than any former Webster chapter has placed. In the state tournament at Springfield, Webster took second place. In individual standings Webster students took one first, one third, and two fourth places.

The rating in the state tournament was not the only distinction attained by the group. This year it became the first chapter in the St. Louis area to sponsor a Student Congress. Such a congress is a mock legislature where bills are debated and voted upon as in the Congress at Washington, D. C.

The N. F. L. social program was as broad as its speech program. It included two picnics, a Christmas party, and a spring program for parents.

Officers elected were: David Daniel, president; Ray Harrison, vice-president; Barbara Hicks, secretary; Rodger Parker, treasurer; and Virginia Peters, publicity director.
"That's a four-cent fine, please." This was a familiar statement to the Library Assistants, who were well acquainted with the library and all its techniques. Their training included checking books in and out, replacing them in proper order on the shelves, and rearranging any that had been misplaced. They gave up their study hall for this work. A great advantage gained from library training was the chance of holding positions in college libraries. In this way many students have helped finance their educations.

Believing the old but true adage about all work making Jack a dull boy, the Library Assistants held parties, and had the fun of choosing new books and decorating the showcase in the senior school lobby with colorful displays.

The group was led by Rosemary Dysart, president; Mary Ann Johnson, vice-president; Caroline Cullimore, secretary; and Miss Bynum and Mrs. Holiday, librarians.
Last fall hungry football fans probably didn’t associate their purchases of chocolate bars with the Echo Annual. Yet their nickels, along with money from the book store, advertisements, subscriptions, and aid from the magazine sales fund, all went into this yearbook.

Finances, however, are only part of the story. The literary staff wrote the articles concerning the clubs’ activities. The photographers’ cameras tried to catch every phase of Webster life. The co-editors planned the entire book. Mr. Brucker, as sponsor, kept all work running smoothly.

April brought hectic deadlines and the Echo Coronation. Much work organized the court consisting of thirty-one elected maids and their escorts. After the Echo Queen had been crowned, everyone attended the Coronation Ball, which had an “Evening in Paris” theme.

The last function of the Echo staff is to present this book to you, and we hope you like it.
On certain Thursdays the students at Webster eagerly waited for the Echo Paper to be distributed. Soon everyone was busy reading another issue of his school paper, which was nationally recognized for its well-balanced editorials, news and sports items, and gossip columns. For the past thirty-five years the Webster Echo has brought the news of Webster High to the students.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Gertrude Fiehler and Miss Lois Studlein, the staff published twelve issues, each averaging about six pages.

The staff not only kept busy with the paper, but also published and sold Turkey Day programs, and gave their annual Paper Doll Prom. Not all was work, though, as their Christmas party and spring banquet proved.

The Editor-in-Chief this year was Nancy Pugh; John Shillington filled the job of business manager.
But I already bought one.

When crisp autumn weather announced the football season, the senior school girls decided that they would like to have more organized cheering at the games. The Cheerleaders agreed and helped each of the three grades to organize its own club, all under the sponsorship of Mr. Brucker. The seniors elected Peggy Gwynn, president; Susie Crawford, vice-president; and Helen Baine, secretary-treasurer. The juniors chose Jane Williams, president; Betty Jo Richter, vice-president; and Jackie Jasper, secretary-treasurer. The officers of the sophomore group were Judy Heuer, president; Martha Sue Gewinner, vice-president; and Elizabeth Schneider, secretary-treasurer.

As they sat together cheering at all the games, the members of the Pep Club made a very attractive appearance in their white sweaters with orange and black emblems.

One of the main activities of the Pep Club was decorating the goal posts before every football game.
A barbecue before the first football game began an active year for the cheerleaders. For every home game they decorated the goal posts with orange and black streamers, and led honking parades to Memorial Stadium. When the football season ended, they cheered at a luncheon for the team given by the Lions' Club. During the Pep Rally for the Turkey Day Game, they led heated cheering around the bonfire. The cheerleaders continued cheering on through the basketball season with both traditional and new yells. Now, although the letter sweaters and the megaphones have been put away, and organized cheers haven't been heard since the last basketball game, the boost that this group gave to Webster school spirit still holds strong.

The cheerleaders, headed by Bill Beattie as captain, were Jeannette Brossard, Dorothy Burger, Barbara and Nancy Faris, John Harrison, Meryl Schmidt, and Jean Williams.
Every Friday afternoon the up-and-coming writers of Webster held their meetings. Under the leadership of Joyce Barnett, president; Virginia Peterson, vice-president; Patsy May, secretary; and Jeanne Rettenmeyer, treasurer, the Scribbler's brought their stories, poems, and essays to be discussed by the club. They even entered the St. Louis Star-Times Writing Contest.

Not all of their activities were serious, however. So that they might enjoy the lighter side of life, they had picnics and refreshments during the year. Last fall a well-attended picnic at Blackmer Memorial Park brought out the social side of the Scribbler's. They also enjoyed delicious refreshments prepared by the girls at each meeting, making a party every week without too much trouble or expense.

Even so, the members of the Scribbler's Club worked steadily toward their ultimate goal of developing an interest in original writing.
"Ends, tackles, center, guard"—these and all the successful athletes of Webster for the second year formed a Lettermen’s Club. During the year the club successfully accomplished its purpose of joining the lettermen from different sports together into a social organization.

Because the boys wanted some place in which they could relax, they furnished a room in the Roberts Gymnasium. Besides this ambitious undertaking, the club also provided ushers for the football and basketball games, and attended lectures concerning sports.

To be eligible for the Lettermen’s Club, a boy must be a junior or senior, and must have been awarded a major letter from any major sport. Boys with minor letters may be associate members.

Under the combined sponsorship of all the coaches, and the leadership of Lee Carlson, president, Glenn Brickey, vice-president, and Dick Duckworth, secretary-treasurer, the Lettermen’s Club enjoyed a successful year.
"Oh, my aching head!" This was the lament of several Chemistry Club members following one of the year's many interesting meetings. These students had been the guinea pigs of some amateur chemists experimenting with laughing gas. Fortunately, not all the meetings produced such disastrous results. Each meeting included an experiment performed by two members of the club. During the year the junior "Schulzes" witnessed the manufacture of cosmetics, starch and various other chemical products and processes.

Any student of chemistry could belong to the club; and since students became members because they were really interested in chemistry, the group was active and interested in obtaining its objects. The primary purpose was to increase the students' interest in chemistry and to show practical uses of the science. The club was piloted through the year by Bob Laatsch, president; Dick Albrecht, vice-president; Meryl Schmidt, secretary; and Libby Eldridge, treasurer. Doc Schulz sponsored the club.

Charades, cokes, and fun at Blackburn Park started the Spanish Club off with a bang this year. Everyone interested in the club came to get to know the club and each other. Later in the fall prospective members went through a scary mock initiation, said a Spanish oath, and enjoyed refreshments at an initiation.

The purpose of the Pan-Am is to promote understanding between us and Spanish-speaking countries. The members meet to learn more about Latin America and become more interested in relations between the United States and our southern neighbors.

At the beginning of the year the following officers were elected: John Boyce, president; Rob Stuart, vice-president; Jane Fredericks, secretary; and Pat Krebs, treasurer.

The club was sponsored by Miss Doud and Miss Sutherland, who gave much valuable assistance in helping to make the organization a success.

Quelle bonne année! This phrase, which, incidentally, means "what a good year!", aptly describes the French Club activities. The club had an active season, with something going on almost every minute.

The year began with a treasure hunt and picnic. Also found on the calendar of events were quiz programs, a visit to the Art Museum, celebrations of French holidays in true French fashion, and several talks by visitors. Among the visitors were a French couple, now making their home in St. Louis, and Joan Gray, a former student at Webster who spent some time in Paris. The highlight of the year came when the club took a trip to Ste. Genevieve, the oldest French settlement in Missouri, and visited its historic landmarks.

The officers for the year were: Jane Coleman, president; Sally Ingamells, vice-president; Kay Ingamells, secretary; and Peggy Gwynn, treasurer. Miss Woods was sponsor of the group.
"A movie today? Wonderful!" A. V. O. members were often greeted with such enthusiasm as they efficiently set up their interesting equipment in a classroom. The A. V. O., which stands for Audio-Visual Operators, showed movies requested by teachers. In this way the group fulfilled its purpose of giving services to help provide better educational means and methods.

In addition to showing movies for educational purposes, the boys presented several movies after school in an effort to raise money. These films provided great enjoyment and entertainment for the students who watched them.

The A. V. O. also furnished public-address systems for all sorts of affairs—athletic meetings, square dances, club meetings, assemblies, and banquets.

The organization was headed this year by its officers: Gene Leonard, president; Bill McNeilly, vice-president; and Everett McClellan, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Leek sponsored the group, which deserves a pat on the back for its valuable and entertaining work.
The Diversified Occupations Program is a wonderful new adventure in education, designed to provide both general and vocational knowledge for high school students. It not only helps students learn their chosen occupations and gain first-hand experience in them, but also helps them apply what they have learned in other courses.

This year Mr. Trotter had a large group participating in the program. This group was divided into two classes, which met every day. In class the students received instruction, both relating to vocations in general and also relating specifically to each individual's work. In the afternoon the students left their classrooms for places where they were employed. Under this program Webster students received invaluable experience in their chosen fields.

As a group the students also took several field trips to various representative firms, such as the Lincoln-Mercury plant, KSD's radio and television studio, the Kroger Bakeries, and the Federal Reserve Bank.

Service . . . but where's the smile?

Diversified Occupations

The star that all stage-minded Webster students strive for is a membership in Thespians, national honorary society. This prize can’t be gained without callousness, for the entrance requirements are good grades, a willingness to work, a real interest in dramatics, and one hundred hours of either production staff work or acting in the major plays produced by the dramatics department. Nevertheless, after each production, bids to Thespians were given out to happy students. Three formal initiations were held at which every initiate read a monologue.

Besides their meetings, the Thespians attended amateur plays and dress rehearsals of productions given by other schools. Whenever possible they trouped down to the American Theater to observe professional acting.

The leaders of the group were: Dorothy Ellison, president; LaVerne Reed, vice-president; Jane Shewman, secretary; Allen Moore, treasurer; and Shirlee Gunlock, sergeant-at-arms. Miss Seibert was the sponsor.

The Production Staff was not an organization in the fullest sense of the word. It was the name given to those who did set construction and similar work for the plays which the dramatics department gave. To become a member of the staff, a student had to put in at least ten hours' work on stagecraft.

The work on stagecraft was generally done on Saturdays, and on practically any Saturday during the year one could have found in the Little Theater a group of busy students engaged in sawing, nailing, glueing, painting, and designing sets.

The plays presented this year called for things from interior sets to thrones for loony kings, and it was the duty of the Production Staff to provide the necessary items.

Hours put in by students on the work counted not only for Production Staff membership, but also for Thespian membership.
Standing Room Only

Stage-aspiring seventh graders started this dramatics club last fall. The meetings were held on the second Monday of every month. At one of these meetings "Hansel and Gretel" was given by a group of girls. The Christmas party was fun, and the scene of many exciting games.

The officers were: Sally Werner, president; Martha Grosskop, vice-president; Adelaide Lang, secretary; and Ann Dally, treasurer.

Footlighters

Brand-new this year was Footlighters, an eighth-grade dramatics club. The members all had a common interest in the stage. Their theatrical ambitions were realized when they gave two successful plays for their appreciative classmates in an assembly.

The officers for the year were: Ester Ann Latta, president; David Spencer, vice-president; Joan Coleman, secretary; and Harriet Howe, treasurer. Miss Alsbury was the sponsor.
A stepping stone to Thespians is Spotlighters, a ninth and tenth grade dramatics club. The purpose of the club is to give students an opportunity to participate in plays and learn information about dramatics. A meeting was held every other Tuesday, at which entertainment was usually given. Exchange meetings were held during the year with the Footlighters and Standing Room Only.

"Camel With the Wrinkled Knees" was the first production given by the Spotlighters. Only members of the club were eligible for parts in the play. The Spotlighters' booth at the Dance Carnival was very profitable for the organization and fun for the rest of the school. Eighteen new members were initiated in November.

The officers for the year were: Patsy May, president; Paul Graf, vice-president; Nancy Jablonsky, secretary; and Ann Bland, treasurer. The sponsor for the club was Miss Burniece.
Working to serve the school and community in every way, the Senior Red Cross had a productive year. The September Membership Drive swelled both the Red Cross organization and its funds. Then, two representatives were elected from each homeroom to plan projects. This group sponsored the sending of gift boxes overseas, and decorated Jefferson Barracks with holiday posters. It was responsible for collecting and repairing old toys for the Red Cross Toy Shop. This shop is for deserving people in Webster who can’t afford Christmas toys for their children. In the spring the group sent an album depicting life at Webster High to Japan. The representatives contacted every Webster home for the Red Cross Fund Drive.

The leaders for the year were: Helen Canada, president; Steve Salveter, vice-president; Pat Krebs, secretary; and Judy Conrad, treasurer. Mrs. Bodman sponsored the organization.
The Junior Red Cross started the year off with the annual membership drive early in the fall. Students became members and obtained certificates by contributing a dime or more. The money collected was used to finance the Red Cross and its services.

Around Christmas time the members worked hard and filled about sixty-five Christmas gift boxes to send to the war-torn countries of Europe. The students also filled thirty-five stockings for the veterans at Jefferson Barracks so as to make their Christmas happier.

The members received a scrapbook from a Red Cross chapter in Germany. They made one to return, containing stories, poems, articles, and pictures about Webster High.

The meetings were held every Wednesday after school. The officers of the group were: Bonnie Lovrenic, president; Mildred Costello, vice-president; Ducky Miller, secretary-treasurer. The sponsor was Miss Roberts.
The attractive gold pins which the aspiring journalists of Webster High were wearing signified that they had become members of Quill and Scroll, a national honorary fraternity of high school journalists. To become a member of Quill and Scroll a student must fulfill four requirements: he must be scholastically in the upper third of his class; he must have done outstanding work in some phase of high school journalism; he must be recommended by a supervisor of journalism in the high school; and he must be approved worthy of membership by a national officer.

The Joseph Pulitzer chapter at Webster is a charter member of the organization, founded in 1926. This year our chapter was awarded a Quill and Scroll pennant in recognition of twenty-five years of approved membership.

Early this spring twenty new members were initiated in a ceremony presided over by Gary Weiss, acting president; John Shillington, acting secretary; and Mrs. Helgeson, sponsor.

THE YOUNG AND FAIR
BY N. RICHARD NASH
Through music, which can cultivate peace of mind, self-expression, and appreciation of varied cultures, we may receive a deep emotional maturity.
Students who played stringed instruments and who did outstanding work on wind and percussion instruments in the band could belong to the Concert Orchestra. This group, directed by Mr. Werner, provided opportunities for performing music by giving an assembly program for the school, a concert for the public in the spring, and by participating in the annual Music Festival.

The group elected officers who oversaw its financial and social affairs. This year's officers were: Francis Nagel, president; Sue Gewinner, vice-president; Doris Wallis, secretary; and Marilyn Merkel, treasurer.

As a result of the difficulties in arranging students' schedules, the orchestra was compelled to hold a rehearsal before school one morning each week. Although a little tiring on the members, these rehearsals helped the orchestra to keep up its fine standard which has always been the distinguishing mark of Webster's instrumental music department.
The Junior Orchestra was to the Concert Orchestra as the "B" athletic teams were to the varsity teams; it provided experience in its field for younger players, and prepared them for the more advanced senior groups. Like the Concert Orchestra, the Junior Orchestra was conducted by Mr. Werner. The wind and percussion players came from the Junior Band.

Perhaps one of the highest honors that could go to a member of the Junior Orchestra was for him to be considered proficient enough on his instrument to play in the Concert Orchestra. Several students were chosen thus, and the Concert Orchestra was considerably aided, especially in the string section.

The officers this year were: Bob Wurtz, president; Tom Blackburn, vice-president; Bob Cook, secretary; and Gale Eddie, treasurer.

The Junior Orchestra takes part in the Music Festival every year and also gave an assembly program for the Junior School.

2nd Circle: Ward, Sample, Novak, Fisher, Sundstrom, LaRoche, Hutchins, Hughes, Bauer, Pierce, Quick.
4th Circle: Eirteen, Johansen, Scott, Eddie, Cannady, Kinstler, Davis.
C. G. Werner, Conductor.
This year the Concert Band proved again that its outstanding reputation in the St. Louis area is well-deserved. Under the direction of H. J. Lemcke, the band gave excellent performances, including assembly programs, participation in the annual Music Festival, and a concert for the public.

The members of the band not only gained enjoyment from playing, but also from social activities, including a picnic at the close of the school year. Supervising both social and business matters were capable officers: Gary Weiss, president; Karl Simon, vice-president; Ann Leutwiler, secretary; Bill Beattie, treasurer; and Norman Zavertnik, librarian.

The Marching Band, which is composed of most of the members of the Concert Band, took an active part in all athletic events throughout the year and, under the direction of Mr. Myers, performed many colorful and entertaining marching maneuvers.

Members of the band can be sure that they not only received something from their musical experience, but also contributed to school life.

What the Junior Band lacked in musical finesse was compensated for by its overwhelming spirit and enthusiasm for music. The group consisted of plucky young musicians who never gave up. This spirit was evidenced at every band rehearsal.

The Junior Band consisted of seventh, eighth, and ninth grade students who played wind and percussion instruments, and were interested in ensemble playing. The group prepared its members for the advanced work done in the Concert Band by holding classes in music theory, and by encouraging the forming of small groups such as trios and quartets. Some of the students who have shown technical ability are chosen to play in the Concert Band, and this privilege is an opportunity that all the students look forward to. The band itself gave a Junior School assembly program, participated in the Music Festival, and joined the Concert Band in presenting a spring concert. The Junior Band also gave a picnic in the spring with the Concert Band.

The officers were: Bill Schwarz, president; Bud Schwarz, secretary; Evelyn Simon, treasurer; and Paul Stein and Carl Raby, librarians.
Skits, group singing, and bonfire fellowship welded the members of A Cappella Choir into a group which worked closely and intensely under the direction of Miss Replogle. The choir participated in several request programs for local schools and organizations. Two of the most important of these were at the Webster Rotary Club and at the Masonic Temple in St. Louis. Much practice and forethought created the Vesper service which told the Christmas story with beautiful music and pageantry. In March the group’s proudest moment came when the choir was asked to sing for the Music Educators’ Association in Oklahoma City. The choir appreciated the honor and the trip equally. Finally, A Cappella presented a spring program which included scenes from light opera.

The officers were: Dick Albrecht, president; Stewart Cruickshank, vice-president; Shirley Jedliska, secretary; Dan Kremer and Peggy Gwynn, treasurers; and Kim Barrows, recording secretary.
The year started with a grand get-together for the Beginning Choir. The group held a picnic at which the members presented skits and sang songs around a bonfire.

The officers elected for the year were Jim Brown, president; Ray McCallister, vice-president; Susan Beal, secretary; Jane Williams and Kit Gallenkamp, treasurers; and Jean Williams, recording secretary.

Directed by Miss Replogle, the choir had a very active year. It presented a program at the Webster Groves Christian Church and participated in the beautiful Vesper services. For the first time the Beginning Choir attended the alum parties and caroled in the halls the day before Christmas.

The choir worked hard all spring on their part in the Spring Program which was presented the first week in April.

Since the Beginning Choir met every other day, the choir had to have extra practices and work unusually hard to accomplish all that they did this year.
This year was an active one indeed for the Chamber Music Club. The organization held regular meetings every month, not counting business meetings. Also included were a Christmas party for alums, a spring program for parents, and several trips en masse to concerts. President Bill Tinker, Vice-President David Daniel, and Secretary-Treasurer Eleanor Herzer smoothly piloted the club through all these activities.

The club this fall started off with nine old members. Each member helped retain the high musical standards of the Chamber Music Club. It became more than ever an organization in which membership is an honor and a reward for outstanding work in instrumental music.

The club continued its purpose of furthering the musical understanding and ability of its members. This purpose was beautifully accomplished through group discussions and opportunities for performing.

Upon returning from Oklahoma City, the Advanced A Cappella and Beginning Choirs began the strenuous preparation of a spring program. The first part was a concert presented by the A Cappella Choir, consisting of some of their regular songs and the songs they learned for the Music Educators' Convention.

Because the concert alone made a rather short program, Miss Replogle, director of the choirs and of the program, thought it would be nice to use a musical review, "We'll Never Be Younger", which was written by Bill Stone, a former Webster student. The program opened with the Beginning Choir mocking the Advanced Choir, then progressed amid gaily-colored costumes through all the songs to the finale, in which the entire cast assembled in formal dress. This unique program was held the first week in April and its songs were number one on Webster’s Hit Parade.
Through athletic practice and competition, we can develop the self-confidence, co-ordination, good sportsmanship, and teamwork essential for mature living.
On August 23, 1950, a small group of boys met in the team room of Coach Roberts' Gymnasium. They were about forty in number, and ranged widely in heights and weights. Coach Moss was doubtful about the success of the football team of 1950.

This group of boys had a great amount of spirit and practiced diligently. They were all fighting for a first-string berth, since there were only four returning lettermen.

Coach Moss worked hard with this team and was pleasantly surprised when at the end of the first game the score was 18-6 in favor of Webster over Ritenour. The following week Webster went to C. B. C., where a Webster team had never defeated that school on their home field. The Statesmen took the 12-7 victory home with them. Webster won from University City, 21-14. After leading throughout the next game but weakening in the last minutes, the boys lost to Maplewood by the narrow margin of 19-13.

With this defeat under their belts, they began to roll like a snowball, gaining momentum as they went. They took the next game from Ferguson 19-7, and then defeated John Burroughs 26-14. The ball began to roll faster by the Statesmen’s defeating Clayton 32-13, Normandy 26-0, and Jefferson City 45-20.

Thanksgiving morning was cold and frosty, and by afternoon there was an inch of snow on the ground. Webster took the field and before five thousand people defeated Kirkwood 37-0, with the second highest score in all the history of the Turkey Day classic.

When the season was over, the team met and elected Guy Rose captain of the great 1950 team. Their outstanding season’s record was nine victories and one defeat.
Working hard to live up to former records, the "B" football team again compiled a fairly successful record. The boys racked up four wins and two losses.

The team was under the direction of Coach Gaines, who was very encouraged to see six returning lettermen, who were Berry Beedle, Don Buerklin, Charles Clark, Tom Fitzgerald, Don Patty, and Gene Weinenschke. The average weight of the team was 150 pounds.

The sophs started the season with a 37-7 victory over University City. Their next victim was St. Charles, whom they defeated 21-7. The next game was a heartbreaker, lost to Maplewood by the score of 14-20. Normandy was twice defeated by the junior Statesmen 7-0 and 30-0. They then lost to Kirkwood 20-28.

At the close of the season Tom Fitzgerald was high scorer with 56 points, while the team had been successfully piloted by Captain Dick Schwieder.
During the first week of school, Coach August Lamar began the task of whipping a new Freshman football team into shape. This year the team was composed entirely of ninth-graders who not only had great competitive team spirit, but also had a lot of fun.

The boys elected John Odor captain and Earl Hansen co-captain. The team's record was two wins, two ties, and one loss. They started the season by tying Wydown, 6-6. They next lost to University City, 12-9. The following game the team again tied, this time with Maplewood, a perennially tough team. The squad ended the year with two brilliant wins, one over Ritenour, 20-6, and Normandy, 12-6.

Since this year marked their first participation in inter-scholastic competition, the boys were enthusiastic and looking forward to their coming years with the sophomore and varsity teams.

In a season which saw nine games end with a point difference of four or less, Webster's basketball Statesmen compiled a mediocre season's record of 12 wins and 11 losses. With just a little more height or a good break at the right moment, a lot of the losses could have wound up in the win column.

The Statesmen opened the season with a one-point win over C. B. C., and followed with lop-sided defeats at the hands of Lebanon and Buffalo. After a 52-44 conquest of Clayton, Webster went on to take the consolation crown at the Normandy tournament after being eliminated by DeAndreis 46-43 in the first round.

After a 46-45 win over Kirkwood, and one 40-39 over Clayton, Webster sank into the depths of a six-game losing streak which saw them drop successive battles to the state champs from Normandy, University City, Brentwood,
Basketball

Cleveland, and Wellston twice. The first Wellston defeat dropped the Orange and Black from their own tournament.

Snapping out of this extensive string of reversals, Webster rolled over Ferguson 47-35, slipped past St. Charles 46-45, and then pulled the upset of the year by downing highly favored Maplewood 57-42. In their final pair of regular season games, the Statesmen dropped Ritenour 61-51, and fell before Kirkwood 57-50. At the Webster Regional tournament Webster won their quarter-final contest, an upset win over Jennings, 47-46, before losing to Maplewood in the semi-finals 50-46 to complete their 12-and-11 record.

The men who saw the most action were Captain Erv Dunkel, Guy Rose, Russ Simmons, and El Miller, seniors, and Bill Hodges, Guy Kahman, and Dave Steinmeyer, juniors.
Sophomore Basketball

Coach Louis Nail's tall, aggressive, 1950-51 Sophomore Basketball Team had an almost perfect season. The team lost only one game and that was to Clayton in the second meeting of the two teams. The annual Webster tourney was taken by the host team. Including all games played, the team had a record of fifteen wins and one loss, which will make this team go down on record as one of Webster's greatest.

Freshman Basketball

The Freshman Basketball Team had a wonderful season this year under the fine direction of Coach Moss. The Frosh not only had well-coordinated teamwork, but also some very outstanding individual stars as well. The team did extremely well in winning all of its fourteen games against traditional rivals. The boys chose two captains who did great jobs. They were Pete La Chapelle and Herschel O'Kelley.

The Webster Wrestlers under Coach Leonard Bryant fought their way to a six won and seven loss season during the 1950-51 campaign. The Statesmen grapplers' six wins included single victories over Normandy, Maplewood, Wood River, and Ferguson, and double wins over University City. The seven defeats came at the holds of Normandy, Maplewood, Ferguson, Kirkwood twice, and Ritenour twice.

Don Ramsey and Dick Harris were the outstanding performers. Don was Webster's only state champion, winning in the 112-lb. class. During the season he won nine and lost one. Harris, although unable to compete at state, won eight and lost two in the 175-lb. class.

Other boys who placed at state were: Bobby Batz, fourth in the 95-lb. class; Don Buback, third as a 103-pounder; and Army Forsythe, fourth in the 127-lb. class. Webster placed fifth in team standings with seventeen points.

Fleschner, Coach Bryant.
Schaller, Hoss, Vogel, DeLong, Budlong, Boggess, Hooker, Elster, Buback, Richmond, Wright.
Terhune, Harris, Forsythe, Rogers, Remick, Frier, Brannaker, Dick DeLong, Myers, Perkins, Herrscher, Batz.
Despite the fine performance of individual players, Webster High’s 1950 baseball team had an unusually disappointing season. For the first time since 1927 the squad’s record was under the .500 mark. Under the leadership of Captain Lee Keefer, the team had an over-all record of eight wins and twelve losses, while it piled up a league record of seven wins and seven losses. Some outstanding records were made by individual team members. Included among the year’s records were a no-hitter by Glenn Brickey against Normandy, a .415 batting average by Lee Keefer, and the honor of having Bob Stoneman chosen as a member of the All-District team. Under the indefatigable energy of Coach Froebel Gaines, the team maintained its good team spirit and the boys returning to the 1951 squad will be ready to avenge the 1950 record.
Coach Leonard Bryant's 1950 thinclads enjoyed the best season they've had in recent years. The Statesmen raced to victory in all four of their dual meets, interrupted only by a last-minute three-point loss to University City in the Maplewood Relays. Webster's dual victims included Normandy, Maplewood, Clayton, and Kirkwood. It was Maplewood's first loss in 32 dual meets. The squad placed third at the University City Invitational, but failed to make impressive team showings at district or state.

Cross Country

With only one letterman returning from last year's good squad, Coach Louie Nail's 1950 Harriers failed to win a dual meet. Coach Nail formed his green team around senior John Rogers, back from last year's group that took second at state.

At the state high school cross-country meet, John Rogers came in ninth in a field of over one hundred. Dave Clegg, Pete Orr, Don Paddy, and Chip Ferry finished in the top fifty.
For the first time since World War II, a tennis team was active at Webster. As a result of the tennis tournament of last fall, the team had been formed with Mr. Lamar coaching. The team had bustling single and double combinations. With Straub's placing, El Miller's net game, Tom Payne's form, Ray Harrison's serves, and Bill McNeilly's defensive game, the team wound up with a successful season.

The golf team consisted of eight players, six of whose scores were counted in a match. The team won twelve matches and lost only one. The boys were proud of placing third in the District Tournament and second in the State Tournament. The group was further distinguished by consisting entirely of lettermen who fulfilled the necessary requirements by playing in one-half of the scheduled games.
Since the introduction of hockey in this school in 1928 it has become one of the most popular sports. It is a sport that requires a great physical endurance and a co-operative spirit. In order to be a good team player, a girl must have exact timing and be a quick thinker.

The three class teams participated in the annual Sports Day at Washington University this year, where they won two games and tied one. The remainder of the season was spent in close competition with the other county high schools—Kirkwood, Maplewood, U. City, Clayton, and Ferguson. After the completion of a very successful class team season, Mrs. Schapp chose a few girls from the class teams, who in turn chose the rest of the varsity team. The varsity squad was captained by Susie Crawford.

The highlight of the 1951 basketball season was the annual Sports Day which was held February 3rd at University City. Webster can well be proud of its record, for the teams won three games and tied one. As a whole, the day was highly successful. A competitive spirit prevailed, but the emphasis was on fun, friendliness, and good sportsmanship rather than on competition.

Webster class teams faced teams from U. City, Clayton, Maplewood, and Kirkwood during the season. As usual these schools proved to be keen competition for our team, although we were fortified with a number of outstanding players.

This year a few girls took the referee's test given by the Women's National Officials Rating Committee. This test consists of a written quiz and a practical examination given before two or more of the national judges.
One of the most outstanding clubs that was organized this year was the Bowling Club. This organization is sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Association and Miss Dorothy Daniel. The forty-eight members of the club were divided into twelve teams, which played a round-robin tournament during the year. At the first meeting of the year, Susie Crawford was elected chairman of the group.

This club has had a good start, and we hope it will continue for many years.

Be sure to let go.

Bowling Club

Many different types of people may participate in volleyball with equal degrees of success. This sport doesn't require any particular athletic prowess, except for alertness. Therefore, many enthusiastic supporters waited eagerly for the volleyball season.

The sophomore, junior, and senior class teams were chosen out of about 250 girls who participated in intramural volleyball. These teams played games with class teams from other county high schools.

After the completion of a very successful class team season, Mrs. Schapp chose a few members from each class team for the varsity team. They, in turn, chose the rest of the team on the basis of skill and proficiency in the sport. As many of the girls will declare, varsity team competition is very keen. All volleyball enthusiasts aspire to the fast, hard-playing varsity team.
Spring weather meant fast, exciting softball games to many senior school girls. In the fresh out-of-doors, the players improved their softball and developed coordination and alertness. They practiced good sportsmanship and learned to work and pull together as a team, too.

As in other sports, the class teams were chosen from intramural teams. The varsity was composed of a few girls who showed outstanding ability on the class teams. Keen competition and skillful playing, along with the high spirit that softball promotes, characterized the varsity games.

A little sadness overtook the seniors after they had played their last game for Webster High and had turned in their warm-ups for the last time, as they realized they had reached the end of an important phase of their high school life.
By wisely building friendships, learning to understand and appreciate all types of people, and by unselfishly establishing student relations, we lay the foundation of our maturity.

The Class of 1951 has chosen these students as the twenty seniors who have made the greatest contribution to school life at Webster.

From a list of those ranking scholastically in the upper half of the class, each senior selected the ten boys and ten girls whom he thought most deserved the honor. The selection was made on the basis of each student's character, personality, initiative, and general contribution as a citizen of Webster High. The ballots were carefully tabulated and the boys and girls pictured here are the ones considered the twenty outstanding seniors of 1951. Congratulations!

INSIDE WEBSTER HIGH

Webster High is said to have opened with the completion of the present-day junior school. The only people who say this, however, are those who have flunked, those who live out of our city limits and have never lived any place else, and other misfits. People who know recall a much humbler origin for Webster High.

Actually our school was begun with the purchase of a coke machine. Either a thirsty population or a corrupt school board set up such a machine on the corner of Selma and Bradford a long time ago. (No, we don't remember the year.) A big sign on the top of the machine identified the spot as Webster High. So did the dozing youths lolling on the ground.

The rains came and came. Snow fell. Wind blew. The change-maker rusted, so the school board enclosed the machine with the present-day junior school. Here's the place where many people have gotten Webster history fouled up. These people are (see paragraph 1).

Various people came to teach the youths how to read the instructions on the coke machine, how to count change quickly, and how the internal parts of the machine worked. Classes were set up and homework assigned. Life was earnest, work was real. In fact, the coke machine was put into storage because it proved distracting to studies. Studies!

Too late the youths realized that they had been tricked into going to an honest-to-goodness school. Gone were the days of saying simply "I want a coke." Now the youths had to be able to say it in French and conjugate it in Latin. A few uprisings in protest were quickly squelched by the student guides. The die was cast, but good.

Webster grew and grew. The school turned out more than its share of the up and coming. Buildings were added and the walls were repainted as the coke machine quietly melted away. The school became big and bustling, yet intimate and drenched in tradition. Webster High was an institution of learning.

More important than that, however, Webster was ready. Ready for the Class of '51. The educational standards could at last meet the intellect and enthusiasm that came pouring into the seventh grade in the fall of 1945. In-tellect battled with spelling bees and chemistry tests. Enthusiasm filled the trophy case and mutilated decorations at dances.

Everything flourished except leisure time. Finally someone objected (they're the kind that make trouble in this world). "Pauses. Refreshment" became the watchword. Then someone remembered the coke machine (this helpful type can make lots of trouble, too). Out came the machine. Away went the books. Down crumbled the walls. Down went the coke.

And now the Class of '51 is safely graduated. The contract for a new school building is being drawn up. Teachers are being sneaked into the curriculum again. Books are being dusted off.

The coke machine is under lock and key in room 203.

FIRST WOMAN PRESIDENT OF HARVARD APPOINTED

The Class of '51 is assembled to celebrate Jane Coleman's appointment as the first woman president of Harvard University. Jane has spent many educational moments preparing for this goal. "I owe everything to Webster High," says Jane. She has already invested in a pair of white canvas shoes.

All of the old gang are here to wish her well. And even though it's 1960, no one's changed very much. For instance, here's Steve Salveter, a multi-millionaire because of his manufacture of leopard-skin car upholstery. Steve's own car is lined with leopard skin, remember when he rode in leopard skin like we peasants do today. We all thought Betsy Emmert would ramble her way into the newspaper business. She's been over Walter Winchell's old column. She got her experience in writing about Webster shindigs. Now she keeps track of opera star Rosemary Dyas. Jimmy Durante's new stand-in, Bill Goodspeed, and the famous impersonator, Dan Jones. He is so good that people are impersonating his impersonations.

Here come more celebrities. Virginia Peters, currently wowing Broadway, and Dorothy Burger, world-renowned tobacco auctioneer, are coming through the door. Dorothy is eternally grateful to her teachers for giving her so little time in class to talk when she was so much to say. Quote Dorothy: "I Just Don't Know What I Would Have Done Ifl Hadn't Had All The Practical Facts To Talking That Had Art Webster.''

Brains in our class, too. Bob Laatsch, for instance. He's being applauded for discovering that H20 plus Sodium Sulfate (Ivory, for that Baby-fresh look) equals clean ears. One notable exception is Janet Wilcke. Poor Janet is hoping to graduate this year. Not that I don't like Webster," says Janet, shifting her cane, "it's just the horrible waiting to see what Doc's going to do next with my grafted eyes. We're pulling for you, Janet. White-haired Jeanne Brossard is still wistfully yearning, "The Day You Caught My Eye." Sandra Miller hasn't changed much either. She was recently voted "One of the 10 best-dressed women" and really is chic in her Dior dress. Shirley Gunlock, now a hot-rod addict and alias "The Terror of the Speedway," is going to give our favorite moonologue. "But Mr. La-

Miss Dyle Gay lets loose with her bubble gum. "I like chewing bubble gum," says Dyle. "because it got me a write-up in the Whooppee. Besides, everyone should have a hobby." Miss Gay was convicted of popping her gum in assembly. (Keep up the good work, student guides.)

Miss Green Roseyard, attired in regulation stripes, displays unbounded enthusiasm above as she is asked her opinion of the Whooppee. Quote Miss Roseyard: "It's simply . . . . . . (We couldn't make out the rest of the sentence, but, as we love to say, one picture is worth a thousand words.)

TRAGEDY IN THE CITY

Don't We Have Some Colorful Names in The Class of '51?

Once there lived a boy who thought life was Bohren. Studying was the Baine of his life, and except when he made Goodspeed to the hamBurger stand, he was always Green with apathy. Then he decided to make his Fortune. Saying Pugh to school, he set off through a Littledale, into a Wood, and over a Moore. He saw a Goodman with two wheelBarrows which held Hoell's of dirt. He was planting a Rose Busch. Just one of those Hicks, the boy thought, and turned toward the city. Its Yoder was really smelly.

Some Crooks were making a Ram in the street. A stray bullet struck our hero, and he fell against the Brickey wall. He started Coffing, and thought he'd Dy-Sartan. (We'd go on except that we've run out of names and plot.)

WEBSTER REACTIONS

To a tiger roaming the halls.
1. Jeanne Brossard would let loose with one of her wide-eyed yells.
2. Dick Dunbar and Mary Burkett would exchange light banter over the amusing sight.
3. Frank Frier would whip out his camera.
4. Bill Mead would try to spirit the beast away with his magic set.
5. Mr. Fues would run to see what species.
6. Kim Barrows would quietly go on knitting her argyles.

To a Webster Tacky Day.
1. Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer would be ably represented by Bill Goodspeed.
2. Louie would be Cupid. (With all the practice he's had, he ought to be good.)
3. Meffert would don a leopard skin and make a perfect Tarzan.

If the cafeteria's toasted cheese sandwiches were toasted.
Aw, cut it out!

marc: "Two surprises are Bill Mead and Mark Youngdahl, both married. They're not much fun any more since they've been so thoroughly domesticated.

A novel career was undertaken by Frank Frier, who has become a champion hog caller. He has such depth of tone, and really attracts those pigs. Also majoring in the Animal Kingdom is Dick Fischer, who directs the St. Louis Aquarium. Trumpets announce the entrance of Gorgeocus George, the wrestling champion. And last, but not least, is muscle-bound Guy Rose acting as bouncer, in case some of the really lively members of our class get really lively. (Less noise, please, Zwygart and "Playboy")

Yep, we're all leading eventful lives now. but none of us will ever be too busy to forget Webster High. So come on, Ray, lead us in Webster Alma Mater.

Fifth of milk 2 Franks (Weir and Zwygart)
LUNCHTIME

12:30 to 12:40—Spent in combing hair, applying and reapplying lipstick, and complaining about fourth-hour assignments.

12:40 to 12:45—Occupied with regaling friends with jokes and anecdotes on the way to the cafeteria.

12:45 to 12:50—Used for squirreling in lunch line, and being put to the end of the lunch line, and otherwise heckling student guides.

12:50 to 12:55—The Crisis!

Toasted cheese sandwich, or 3c more for meat?

Does a four-check lunch mean walking home from school?

(A bad chance to take if auto-motivated friends aren’t susceptible to hints or bribery.)

How many calories in a piece of fudge cake?

All these, and many other questions are asked daily by 1700 students between the crackers and the cash register. They are answered after about five minutes of hard mental debate plus spirited prodding from students who are itching for their turn to hold up the line.

12:55 to 12:58—Spent in looking for a table, which involves scowling at encroachers and scowling at people who are nasty about being encroached upon.

12:58 to 12:59—Exhausted by looking for mustard.

12:59 to 1:00—Used up in laughing cynically at the size of the meat slice in the sandwich, remembering that fudge cake isn’t good for the complexion, and being revolted by a friend’s choice of broccoli.

1:00 to 1:01—Spent in taking back tray.

1:01 to 1:02—Occupied with boys behind candy counter to please hold window up for a second... just time to get some taffy... please?

1:02 to 1:03—Spent in racing through the halls and complaining about the inconsiderateness of boys who sell candy and the prospect of fifth hour without the companionship of a taffy bar.

1:03 to 1:04—Vanishes with reapplying of lipstick and recombining of hair.

1:04 to 1:05—Spent in an “I’m going to be late” frenzy.

1:05 to 1:06—Spent in seeing ominous forebodings about being late come true.

1:06 and thereafter—Spent in patiently explaining to counselors that lunch periods are too short for the average student’s needs.
