Geno

I sure think you're a good lookin' kid. I really wish you was around more. You were one neat guy. Always clean.

Dear Geno,

We really miss you at Fellowship. You were one neat guy. Always clean.

Love,

Huey

Good luck to a great guy. I enjoyed watching you 'hold his own' in Am. Problem.

The Echo

1953
If we work upon marble, it will perish; if on brass, time will efface it; if we rear temples, they will crumble into dust; but if we work upon immortal minds, and imbue them with principles and the just fear of God and love of our fellow-men, we engrave on those tablets something that will brighten to all eternity.

Daniel Webster.
This volume commemorates the fiftieth graduating class of Webster Groves High School.
Southwest exposure of the building.

Webster Groves Junior High School entrance.
The Hands of Tradition reach down through the ages, imparting to the dreams of the future the experience of the past. Ambition is guided by the eternal knowledge of Tradition, within whose infinite bounds abides the wisdom to further the visions of succeeding generations and lend assurance of the future to days yet unborn. It is to these precious traditions that The Echo of nineteen hundred and fifty-three is dedicated.
This is our school—ageless, in the sombre beauty of its ivy shadowed silence.
Here were fostered our ideals of sportsmanship, thoroughly imbued by the practical lessons of competition.
This is Webster Groves

Here, in our absence, will remain our memories.
Memories which repose in the time-dusted tradition of learning.

The main goal of the thirty-three student council representatives was to acquaint the students with the function of their government. Many of Webster’s students gained this knowledge and enjoyment by serving on the various committees of the council and by helping with many of their projects.

The Student Council worked very hard this year to carry out the activities which have almost become traditions here at Webster. The Magazine Sales Campaign, which grossed $2,200.00 for the organizations of the school, Color Day, the Pep Rally and Bonfire, and many of the assemblies were all Student Council sponsored. However, there were many other groups at work which did not receive the recognition that was given to the larger committees. Student Guides, Dawn Patrol, Lost and Found, Coke Machine, and many of the trophy case displays were also the result of the work and the planning of these elected representatives.

The council, operating for the first time in several years as a one-house legislative body, proved very efficient. Most of the second semester the council spent in writing a new constitution which will go into effect next year.

The Student Council played an active part in the lives of the students and was considered a valuable experience by all who had the opportunity of serving on it.

The Junior Student Council is the governing body of the Junior School, which consisted of regular and alternate representatives elected from each homeroom. The council met every Wednesday afternoon after school and discussed the problems which had confronted them during the previous week.

The main job of this Student Council was to supervise the lunchroom monitor force. They were also in charge of a reading room and a study hall for the seventh and eighth grade students during their lunch period.

Some of the students in the organization worked with the Assembly Committee and helped plan the talent assemblies which were presented to the respective classes. Another of their activities consisted of promoting junior school interest in the Magazine Sales Campaign.

In addition to these activities the Junior Student Council furnished guides for the annual open house last fall. The council also brought to the attention of the students many of the problems which confronted the school, such as keeping the halls and lockers clean, and keeping the lunchroom orderly.

Nineteen
Webster Groves High School has made great progress in the field of student government, and a striking example of this is the Student Guidance Council. While most of the schools in this area have student councils, there are very few which have guidance councils.

The Student Guidance Council functions as the judicial branch of the student government. Student guides refer the names of those people who break the rules to the guidance council, and the offending student then meets with the council. The council tries to help the individual to see his mistakes and offers him friendly advice for correcting the situation. Thus by removing the causes for violation of the rules, the guidance council makes the school a better place in which to work. By showing the individual how to correct his mistakes, a guidance council helps the student to become a better citizen in school and community.

The guidance council was composed of three seniors, one junior, and one sophomore, who were elected by their respective classes. The Student Body President and the Senior School President acted as chairmen of the group.

The Student Guidance Council is a comparatively new idea at Webster; it has been in existence only five years. During that time, however, the council has continually tried to accomplish its aim, which has been to make the school a better place to attend.

The Monitors have given expert guidance to members of the junior school again this year. These eighth grade boys, who wore the Monitor arm badge, were specially recommended by class counselors, by officers of the Junior Student Council, and by faculty members who had had them in their classes.

In order to have the best organization possible, the Monitor staff was made up of two separate groups. One group of twenty-five boys, sponsored by Miss Brantley, supervised the seventh and eighth grade lunch period. These boys controlled the lunch and the candy lines and kept the lunchroom in order. The other group of Monitors, sponsored by Mr. Litzinger, served as hall monitors during the noon hour. This group of about twenty-five boys was responsible for preventing confusion in the halls and for keeping the students within the junior school area. Both groups of Monitors performed their duties efficiently.

The boys who served as Monitors this year were successful in gaining the respect of their classmates because of the leadership qualities which they had already begun to develop. Traditionally they have been just in reprimanding and in punishing students, when necessary. Because of the outstanding record of this organization, most of the student leaders in high school point with pride to their experience as Monitors in the junior school.

Dear Janie,

We've known each other for a long time. I really think you're small. Remember one summer at the swimming pool? Best of luck - have fun!

Best,
Jonie

Besides being active in numerous school activities, the juniors took a great deal of interest in their own class affairs. In November, the class had a talent assembly, and in December, a junior-sophomore party at which games, dancing and, of course, refreshments were featured.

The junior class cabinet, composed of the president of each homeroom, originated and co-ordinated the class affairs. The cabinet arranged the junior-senior basketball game, and the ring committee aided the class in the selection of their senior rings.

To raise money for their activities, the juniors carried on several projects. At the football games Webster megaphones were sold, and the "basketball throw" at the Student Council Dance Carnival was sponsored by this group.

The future of the juniors was not overlooked either, for each student had two conferences with Miss Jones, his counselor. Their grades and class standing were discussed as well as plans concerning the coming year's program. The class took part in College Day activities, and soon started thinking of their careers after leaving Webster High.

The Junior Prom, which was planned by several committees under the supervision of the cabinet, was held on April 18 in the Roberts Gymnasium. The dance brought to a climax the juniors' most active and probably most successful year.

This year's sophomore class demonstrated its class spirit and interest in activities by working well as a unit on its projects. The class cabinet cooperated with the class officers in planning a number of assemblies. A talent assembly, a pep assembly, a drivers education assembly, and an assembly on Junior Alcoholics Anonymous were all presented. Another successful activity was the combined sophomore-junior dance which was held in December.

The class members point with pride to their treasury, which they have built up with profits from the sophomore-junior dance and with the money they have earned through the years in magazine sales. Expenses of the Echo class pictures and operational costs of the class were taken from the treasury.

The sophomores were also very proud of their athletic accomplishments. Their football team remained undefeated, and their basketball team also had an outstanding record. The sophomore girls, feeling a need for a sophomore pep club, established one and the girls faithfully attended the "B" team games, and were instrumental in stirring up increased enthusiasm for sophomore sports.

Members of the class of 1955 have shown a great deal of ability thus far in managing class government and in carrying out their aims. Their athletic ability and enthusiasm are also a guarantee that they will continue their outstanding record in the next two years.

At the beginning of the school year the members of the freshman class elected their class officers. During the Christmas holidays, however, the president moved away from Webster, and from that time on his office was ably administered by the vice-president.

The class officers and the homeroom presidents, nine in number, made up the class cabinet. The cabinet has sponsored many class activities. Toward the beginning of the year they held a class assembly featuring ninth grade talent, and conducted a class party in the spring.

This year the members of this class had their first taste of student guidance. This was their first acquaintance with student assembly guides and in their lunch period, which they shared with the sophomores, they had their own guidance program. Those who would not cooperate were disciplined by the Senior Student Guidance Council.

The freshmen took part in many extra-curricular activities. Most of the boys were active in after school sports and many of them went out for "C" football and "C" basketball. Their Pep Club was a very active organization, and the class elected cheerleaders from their group. Through the efforts of the cheerleaders the attendance at the "C" team games increased. The girls, too, participated in after-school sports and in various organizations.

The freshmen have made great strides in government, athletics, and other activities, and are eagerly looking forward to their next year.

This year's seventh grade class was the largest ever to enter Webster Groves High School. The 373 students came not only from the eight local grade schools, but other localities as well.

Entering high school is always a new and exciting experience and it was no different for this class. They eagerly joined varied outside activities which included a stamp club, dramatics club, intra-mural sports and Boys’ Choir.

A new feature this year was the parent discussion groups, initiated to help parents feel more a part of the school. With the officers of each homeroom acting as hosts and hostesses, the parents met all the people with whom their children came into contact; their teachers, their counselor, Miss Jackson, the school nurse, the principals, and the office assistants. The parents enjoyed coffee and cookies at these informal meetings and gained an opportunity to become better acquainted with their children's instructors.

Each student took a required curriculum consisting of three hours of English and social studies one semester, and two hours the next. Mathematics was taken for both semesters and science, speech, crafts, physical education and vocal or instrumental music were each taken for one semester.

The Handclasp

Traditionally . . . the symbol of friendship and understanding. Our lives are immeasurably enriched by the associations which are enjoyed in the informal hours of learning.
The Echo

After much hard work, both during and after school, the Echo staff has brought out another yearbook for the enjoyment of the students. Every day one could find the staff at work in the Echo office or in Room 203.

The year was opened with the taking of group pictures of the clubs and lower classes. Each organization that was to be represented in The Echo had a picture taken in front of the Roberts Gym by a professional photographer.

When all the pictures had been taken, the real work began. Pictures had to be identified and the accompanying articles written. The task of writing these articles fell to the literary staff; and since this was a group of but six, each put in long hours at writing. The features staff had the work of taking all the informal shots, and this staff also was responsible for all photographs of the athletic events. It was a rare sight, indeed, not to see an Echo reporter on the sidelines.

All this would have been useless, however, if the business staff had not worked hard to cover the rising costs of production by candy sales, bookstore sales, advertising and subscriptions.

To present this volume of The Echo to the students is the last function of the 1953 staff, and we hope you will be pleased with our efforts.

For many years The Webster Echo has set a high mark in high school journalism, and this year was no exception. The paper has brought well-rounded and complete news coverage, of both the junior and senior schools, to the students of Webster High for more than thirty-five years. This year the paper averaged about eight pages each edition and carried news, editorials, features, and sports.

Advertisements, subscriptions, and the activity ticket fund were among the principal sources of revenue for the paper. The Webster Echo also received help from the magazine campaign, and the staff sold programs at the Thanksgiving Day football game. Funds were also raised by the annual Paper Doll Prom held in March.

Besides publishing the paper, the staff carried on several other journalistic activities. Some of the members met the requirements of the Quill and Scroll, national honorary society, and took an active part in the group. To better understand the publication of a large city newspaper, a trip to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch was made in March.

The staff met in Room 311 during the sixth hour, and there was always a lot of work done in getting the paper ready for publication. To bring the year's activities to a close, the staff got together for a picnic in the spring.

The Webster Echo

Sixty-six
The Echo Christmas party.

The chapter of the national society for high school journalists, Quill and Scroll, at Webster was chartered in March, 1927. The group was accepted as charter members in the society which was founded at Iowa University by Mr. George H. Gallup, the now famous public opinion expert. At the time, Mr. Gallup was head of the executive committee and editor of the Quill and Scroll Magazine.

Webster's newly-formed group decided to name itself after the great journalist and founder of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Joseph Pulitzer.

The membership in the group was then, as it is now, made up of the staffs of The Echo and The Webster Echo. The members have always had to fulfill the same requirements. Members must be juniors or seniors, in the upper third of their class, recommended by the publication's sponsor, doing work worthy of special recognition, and must be accepted by the National Secretary of the organization.

Through the years the membership in the Quill and Scroll chapter at Webster has been a great honor, and the membership has been reserved for those deserving it. All indications point toward the preservation of this concept in the future.

The N. F. L. had one of its most active and successful years in 1952-1953. The club took an active part in speech tournaments both at Webster and other schools throughout St. Louis and St. Louis County.

The speech activities consisted of debating, original oratory, oratorical declamation, humorous, radio, dramatic, and extemporaneous speaking. In most of these divisions the students wrote their own speeches, and with the aid of Mrs. Weirich, prepared them for delivery in both N. F. L. and Missouri High School Debate League tournaments.

Several of the members demonstrated their speaking skill in the Optimist Speaking Contest and the American Legion Oratorical Contest. In the field of radio, the N. F. L. was represented in the Voice of Democracy contest and the Junior Town Meeting of the Air broadcast from the high school auditorium.

In the spring the Student Congress was held at Webster, and representatives from the N. F. L. chapters from the St. Louis area attended. The Congress was patterned after the Senate and House of Representatives of the national government.

The social activities were as varied as the speech activities, and included a fall and spring picnic. At Christmas time many former members attended the annual alumni party.

Thespians, a national honorary dramatics society, ended its 21st year at Webster High in 1953. Students who have shown proficiency in dramatics have made this organization one of the most outstanding in the high school. Membership was open to anyone who had a willingness to work and who had one hundred hours of work in the dramatics program. Of these hours, thirty had to be spent working on stagecraft, which involves set construction and decoration.

Thespians is a non-secret, non-social organization and the public was welcome to attend its formal initiations. An informal quiz and the presentation of a monologue by each of the initiates preceded the formal initiations, which were held after the productions of Dear Ruth and Berkeley Square. Members of the organization and those interested in earning the highly prized honor worked many long hours on stage and back-stage to assure the success of these productions.

The most important activity of the Thespians was the installation of a new chapter at the Brentwood High School. The group also enjoyed attending dress rehearsals of plays at other county schools.

As in past years, Thespians have continued to develop interest in the dramatics department and to make the dramatic productions at Webster a vital part of the school's activities.
The 1952 Little Theatre season was successfully climaxed last spring by the presentation of the humorous drama, Sight Unseen. This fantasy was built around the actions of an Englishwoman who was trying to sell her ghost-inhabited ancestral castle. The complications which arose from the reluctance of the ghosts to part with their home left everyone quite satisfied with this production.

A few letters sent to a serviceman were the beginning of an amusing comedy, Dear Ruth, which was presented last fall. Much excitement was created when Bill, the serviceman, returned home expecting to marry Ruth. Ruth, however, had no such intentions since it was her younger sister, not she, who had written the letters. The action which unfolded was fast and furious, and left the audience quite amused.

Is it possible to turn back time as Peter Standish did in the production of Berkeley Square? Audiences were visibly impressed by the drama which occurred when a twentieth-century American projected himself into the eighteenth century of his ancestors, who were astonished at the unusual powers of foresight which Standish seemed to possess. Peter's body eventually returned to his own time, but his memories were forever doomed to live in the past.

Production Staff

The Production staff is the backbone of every play presented at Webster. It is composed of students who have worked at least fifteen hours on stagecraft for the dramatics department. The members are usually juniors or seniors, but occasionally a sophomore earns enough hours to become a member.

The task of set construction as well as the work done on posters was in the hands of these students. On Saturdays for weeks preceding the opening of a play, one could find members working on set construction. The Little Theatre, and, perhaps, the surrounding areas, were filled with the sounds of hammering and sawing which went into the restoration and building of flats.

When the entire collection of flats was joined together to form the three walls of a set, the job of painting commenced. It was amazing how rapidly a few people could cover the walls with paint. With the painting of the flats, only the finishing touches were needed.

To make sure that everyone had a chance to do several of the backstage jobs, a different committee head was chosen for each production, thus giving all students a wide knowledge of "behind the scenes" activities.

Accomplishing this work meant sacrificing Saturdays and many after school hours, but the group realized that their time was well spent when they saw the finished products. The students obtained wide experience and earned some of the hours which are required to gain membership in the National Thespian Society.

The Spotlighters were a group of ninth and tenth grade students interested in dramatics, whose purpose was to give "aspiring Thespians" the opportunity to take part in dramatic productions.

For a group of this kind the membership for this year was extremely large, and after the beginning of the second semester the organization broke up into two groups. The ninth grade students formed one group, and the tenth graders formed the second. The groups met separately on alternating weeks, and they soon found that by meeting in smaller numbers more could be accomplished.

In the spring of the year the Spotlighters put on a series of one act plays for the student body. The group used the Little Theatre and their efforts were enjoyed by all. The club didn’t give any major production, but many of the members were cast in the productions of the advanced dramatics department, while others worked on the production staff.

The organization did much toward increasing interest in dramatics and in fostering active participation by freshmen and sophomores.

This year the Beginning Choir had one of its smallest memberships; however, the eighty-three members did not consider this to be a handicap.

In the fall the choir held its annual picnic at Pennel's. Skits were presented to acquaint the students with one another, and afterwards, they sat around the bonfire and ate apples and doughnuts and sang.

At Christmas time a group of students formed an octette which sang carols for different organizations throughout the city. Also during the Christmas season almost all the choir members were in groups which went carolling on Christmas Eve. The money which was collected was given to the Red Cross.

The group's most important job was learning the beautiful songs which they sang in the annual Vespers service. Its second purpose was to prepare singers for the advanced choir. To aid in this the students were taught some of the songs which they would sing in the A Cappella Choir.

In addition to learning the correct way to sing, the members were shown the amount of work that had to be done to make a musical performance a success. Their participation in the choir is bound to help round out their education even though they do not continue with music.

Through the years the A Cappella Choir has been one of the leading organizations at Webster High. The members of the choir have contributed much toward the improvement of school life and the establishment of fine community relationships. The group was composed of one hundred and twenty-six voices.

Musically the A Cappella contributed to the life of the school and the community by the presentation of many programs. The choir made numerous appearances at such places as Jefferson Barracks, The Child Study Club, the five service clubs of Webster Groves, and the P. T. A. meetings at most of the community's grade schools.

The year was highlighted by Vespers, the annual portrayal of the Nativity, and by the production of Sigmund Romberg's operetta, Desert Song, on March 18, 19, 20. An orchestra of thirty-five pieces accompanied the production.

Several activities of the choir added fun and aided in developing the spirit of the group. The first of these was a picnic in the early fall, at which humorous skits were presented. The Christmas alumni party after Vespers was enjoyed by all. In May the annual swimming party was held in honor of the graduating seniors.

Christmas Vespers

The traditionally beautiful Christmas vespers services were again presented in the High School Auditorium, December 21st through December 23rd. The participants were the members of the A Cappella, Beginning, and the Boys' Choirs, as well as students chosen to take part in the pageant.

For more than twenty years some sort of Christmas program has been presented by the music department during the Yuletide Season. The first of these were choral programs, presented in the old armory. In 1935 the story "Why The Chimes Rang" was given in pageantry. This first attempt at dramatizing the Christmas story led to the presentation of the complete story of the birth of Christ. This impressive service has been given for sixteen consecutive years.

At first these programs were intended just for the high school student body, but the idea of a Christmas program caught on and soon special services were being presented for the public. The custom has continued and grown until in recent years it has become necessary to give three services exclusively for the public, and two for students.

This presentation of the Christmas story, told in simple, moving pageantry, has come to mean a great deal to all members of the community, and does much toward reminding us of the true meaning of Christmas.

The operetta The Desert Song was presented in March by the advanced A Cappella Choir under the direction of Miss Esther Replogle. The music and lyrics for this work were first conceived in 1926 by Oscar Hammerstein II and Sigmund Romberg.

The story of The Desert Song was set in the desert of modern North Africa. The first scene opened high in the Riff Mountains in the hideout of the Red Shadow, who was the leader of a band of outlaw men. These renegades were trying to wrest control of the government from the oppressive French Army, and the story of the ensuing struggle between the Riffs and the French, along with a triple romance, was outlined in the two act operetta. The blending of adventure, comedy and romantic music captivated the audiences which packed the auditorium on three successive evenings.

The vocal talents of Martha Stoecker and Jim Brown headed a capable cast which included Charlton MacVeagh, Dave Sullivan, Bob Huspeth and Jim Krebs. The comic leads were played by Camilla Wright and Dave DeVos, while a highlight of the program was the dancing of Barbara Reeder and Anne Jaudon.

The Desert Song has been presented over one thousand times since its initial performance in 1927 in London, and the Webster High production of this ever-popular musical play was enjoyed by everyone.

The Concert Orchestra met everyday during the fourth hour to further their musical aims. During this time the group studied and played all types of music, extending from that of the great classic composers to the works of contemporaries. The larger portion of the time was spent becoming familiar with music literature and developing the technical ability necessary for playing the selections.

The orchestra participated in many events throughout the year. Some of those were the annual Spring Concert, the St. Louis County Music Festival, and a radio broadcast. Also the orchestra played for all the performances of the dramatic productions given in the Little Theater and the musical accompaniment to the operetta, Desert Song. The highlights of the year were the presentation of the graduating seniors playing concertos, as soloists with full orchestral accompaniment, and participation in the All State String Orchestra, which met for two days in February under the leadership of Vladimir Golschman, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

At the end of the year everyone enjoyed the outdoor party held after the Spring Concert, at which time the motion pictures, taken of the orchestra at various times during the year, were shown.

The Concert Band, one of the finest high school bands in the state, continued its tradition of fine musical accomplishments.

The band studied the best in symphonic band literature, including the Egmont Overture by Beethoven and compositions by Saint-Saens and Bizet. The band members also appreciated popular music — John Phillips Sousa marches, and the light opera selections from Rose Marie and the Student Prince.

The activities of the band were numerous. It appeared in school assemblies, a radio broadcast, and performances at grade school P. T. A. meetings. Open air concerts at Blackburn Park, which were given for the public, were another highlight of the year.

Chamber music groups, quartets, sextettes, trios and soloists performed in the St. Louis County Music Festival. Twelve members of the Concert Band were selected to be in the All County High School Band, which consisted of the outstanding instrumentalists from the high schools of St. Louis County.

Scholarships for outstanding high school musicians were awarded to five of the members. The recipients were allowed to attend a weekly class in music theory and harmony at Washington University.

The band members feel assured that they have not only gained much musically but that they have also contributed to the school life at Webster.

The Junior String Orchestra consisted of string instrumentalists from the seventh, eighth and ninth grades. The seventh graders met the second hour, and the eighth and ninth graders met the third hour. All meetings were in the band room. Several ninth graders were considered proficient enough to play with the more advanced group — the concert orchestra.

As a group, the orchestra played arrangements of the classics and standard orchestra repertoire. They also received rhythmical training and scale practice to improve their ensemble playing.

Each individual member had an opportunity to become more proficient by playing a solo each six weeks. Seating tests were held twice a semester, and considerable rivalry existed for the first chair positions in the various sections.

To give the members experience and confidence in playing, the orchestra performed at several grade schools and at the St. Louis County Music Festival. For the first time the junior orchestra and band gave a joint concert for parents and friends.

The social affairs of the orchestra consisted of a Christmas party and a spring picnic. Each was a success and proved to be as enjoyable as other orchestra activities.

The Junior Band, which had a membership of eighty-five, was divided into two groups. The seventh grade section formed one, and the eighth grade and ninth grade section another. The groups met separately but both were under the same direction. The officers of the organization were elected from the entire membership.

The assemblies which were presented by the band at several of the elementary schools proved to be excellent training for the group. The members appeared in the junior school section of the St. Louis County Music Festival which is held annually in April. The band also had the privilege of playing with the senior marching band at several of the football games, the most important of which was the Turkey Day game. At that game they also participated in the marching formations presented at half time. Many small ensembles and soloists were taken from this group to play in various competitions and to entertain other organizations.

A very special feature of the program was a class in music theory. Attendance was compulsory for all seventh grade band members. Here they learned how to write musical notes, make characters and form scales. They studied the history of music and became familiar with the background and use of all the musical instruments.

Again this year the Chamber Music Club was a picked group of the finest instrumentalists in the school. After an audition, applicants were elected into membership on a basis of musical ability and maturity.

The club was designed to further activity in music and provide an outlet for the talents of its members. Because the group was relatively small, it accomplished these aims more fully for soloists and small ensemble players than a large group could.

Monthly meetings were held at the homes of different members, and after the business had been transacted there was a program which consisted of solo and ensemble performances by various members. Very often the members held an informal discussion on various composers and periods or fields of music. The adjournment of the meetings followed the serving of refreshments.

The annual Christmas party was held at the home of the organization's sponsor. Many alumni were present, and they told the group what they had been doing musically. The club is proud of the fine record its alumni have made in the field of music.

From time to time, the group went en masse to hear various chamber music groups, and they enjoyed them immensely. The year's activities were concluded with a recital held to display the group's talents.

Every other Wednesday after school in Room 211, a group of aspiring actors from the eighth grade held a meeting of the Eighth Grade Dramatics Club. The members, all interested in the theater, met to discuss and rehearse their own plays.

At one meeting a demonstration and explanation on how to apply makeup was given by Mrs. Allen Richardson. Following this demonstration, the members practiced on one another and thereby gained first-hand knowledge of theatrical makeup application.

The Part Is Picked was given for a seventh and eighth grade assembly. The play concerned the efforts of a young girl to secure a part in a play from an unsympathetic dramatics teacher. The production, presented by about twenty club members, was excellently received.

What's Cooking was presented by a cast of ten. The comedy involved the circumstances brought about when an embarrassed boy tried to hide the fact that his sister had entered and won a cooking contest with one of his recipes.

The club gave anyone interested in acting a chance to participate in a play and further their knowledge of dramatics.

The Latin Club, one of the oldest clubs in the school, started a successful year with a picnic at Tillies Park. One of the many interesting meetings was a talk by Miss Susan Sherry, a former teacher at Kobe College, Japan. Their interest aroused by this, the club sent a package of winter clothing to Japan. At the annual Christmas party an auction was held to swell the Farmington Orphanage fund, and the sum of ninety-seven dollars was collected for this worthy project. The club also sent a record player, eleven bicycles, and other toys to Farmington as Christmas gifts. In the spring the club made a trip to the orphanage to see firsthand the beneficiaries of their work.

The fortune-telling booth at the Dance Carnival was also the work of the club. The year was closed with a spring banquet.

One of the pleasant features of taking Latin is the opportunity to work on the Latinus Rumor, the Latin newspaper. The five and six page issues, which were distributed monthly, included jokes, crossword puzzles, news and articles about the customs, traditions and myths of the Romans.

The staff of Latinus Rumor had the honor of publishing the November issue of the Missouri State Latin Paper, Acta. Latinus Rumor exchanged papers with schools all over the United States.

The purpose of the Pan Am League was to become better acquainted with the Spanish speaking countries. Through their activities the members tried to promote more friendly relations between the United States and our neighbors to the south. Anyone who had studied or was studying Spanish was eligible for membership.

The league’s activities were planned and carried out by an executive council which consisted of the club’s officers and one representative from the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth grade members.

During the year the club had several speakers who spoke on Spain and other Spanish speaking countries. Skits and programs by the members themselves comprised several other meetings. The club made two trips to the Art Museum in St. Louis to see the Spanish art, rooms, and other objects.

Social life of the club formed an important part of the club activities. The year got off to a good start with an initiation picnic in October. Christmas and Valentine parties saw the members eating cookies and drinking cokes. A profitable and enjoyable year was brought to a close with a banquet at which the officers for next year were installed.

Early in the fall the French Club’s activities got under way with a picnic for prospective members. Anyone so desiring could join the French Club, if he was able to fulfill two requirements. A prospective member must have completed at least one half year of French — although he didn’t have to be taking French at the time — and he must have maintained a “C” average. The initiation was very simple. The prospective members presented several skits, and after being questioned by the members on various phases of French life, they were presented replicas of the French flag.

The highlight of the club’s activities was a special excursion to the Art Museum where members spent the afternoon happily browsing around. The main reason for the visit was to view an exhibit of French art. The members also took a bus trip to Ste. Genevieve, Missouri, the oldest French settlement in Missouri. There many of the old landmarks are still intact. This visit proved both interesting and educational.

The club also had a booth in the Student Council Dance Carnival. The booth was called a “Record Swing”. Records swung back and forth, like a pendulum, behind a board with a hole in the center. Contestants attempted to throw tennis balls through the opening in an attempt to break the record. Prizes were awarded to the successful players.

Each week, weather permitting, an intrepid group known as the Riding Club, went horseback riding at a nearby stable. At the start of the club’s activities the group had well over twenty members, with most of them being active.

Its activities, of course, centered about the weekly rides, which started after school when a hay van from the stable picked up the members at school. On arriving at the stable the members would pick out their mounts; and if they weren’t saddled, some of the more ambitious equestrians would help saddle the horses. When the horses were saddled, the club began its one and a half to two hour ride through what the people at the stable called the “Meramec Swamp”. When the group finished riding, they returned to the stable and unsaddled the horses. In the words of one member, “It was a lot easier taking the saddles off than putting them on.”

Other activities of the club were a party in January and a hike to the "unfinished castle" on the Mississippi River.

During the year, meetings of the Chemistry Club were held as frequently as interesting programs could be planned. Membership in this organization was open to any student taking chemistry, and since attendance was not compulsory, only those students who were particularly interested attended.

The club’s purpose was to acquaint its members with the practical applications of chemistry and to give interested students an opportunity to go beyond the regular academic course. The projects were numerous; and they included experimentations into the fields of hydroponics and electroplating. Several Webster students entered projects in the Science Fair, and the club also sponsored a booth at the Dance Carnival.

One of the club’s most interesting trips was a field trip to Washington University, where the group saw several of the chemistry laboratories in operation. At another meeting Dr. Lawrence Widdows talked on the peacetime uses of atomic energy.

Enthusiasm for experimentation and development of the chemical sciences has been the natural outgrowth of these meetings of the Chemistry Club, and many of its members plan to continue their studies in college.

The senior Hi Y started its most active year by selling a record number — fifteen hundred — Buzz Books, the high school students' telephone directory. The sale of the books was not only a service to the students, it also helped the club financially.

Another activity was the annual Friendship Dance held at the Kirkwood High Gymnasium on Saturday evening following the traditional Thanksgiving Day football game. The dance was sponsored by the Hi Y's of both schools and was given to promote good feeling between the two.

In March several representatives from the club went to Jefferson City to participate in the Hi Y Model Legislature. The meetings were conducted in the same manner as the Missouri General Assembly with bills introduced and officers elected by the student representatives.

The club aided in the annual Y. M. C. A. membership drive which helped to support the Y program. As a service project, the Y gave a Christmas dinner for a needy family of nine children.

The Hi Y is part of a national organization with over eleven thousand clubs in the United States and Canada. Its purpose is to create and maintain high standards of christian character in the home, school and community.

Like the other Hi Y clubs, Hi Y '55 A tried to live up to the Y platform of clean living, speech, sportsmanship and scholarship. The group worked very enthusiastically on their projects, and had many accomplishments to their credit by the end of the year.

A week-end trip to Camp Lakewood, the Y. M. C. A. camp near Potosi, Missouri, started the year. After working about four hours, a night's lodging and meals were furnished them. Their free hours were spent canoeing, swimming, horseback riding, hiking and in other activities.

In cooperation with two other Hi Y's the club gave a Sophomore-Freshman Dance in February. The three clubs chose six special maids, one of whom was crowned Sophomore Queen. The proceeds of the dance were given to the Webster High Athletes Accident Benefit Fund.

Since many members of the club were learning to drive, a series of programs on driving was given throughout the month of February. Movies and speakers were featured in four programs which were followed by discussions. It was hoped that these programs would make students more conscious of good driving habits.

As a welfare project, a basket of food was sent to the Red Cross at Christmas for distribution among needy families. In addition to their varied activities, the club had many informal hours of entertainment at their regular meetings which were held on Wednesday evenings at the Y.

Those industrious students who were seen checking out books in the junior school library or delivering fine slips were members of the Junior Library Club. The members were volunteers from the seventh, eighth and ninth grades; they worked in the library during their regular study hall periods.

Because of the shortage of workers at certain hours, one student in each "bloc" class was responsible for checking books in and out during his "bloc" class's library period.

Aside from checking books in and out, other duties of the members were: typing fine slips, reading and helping to process the new books as they came in.

Club meetings were held at the beginning of each six weeks period, and "at Call". Several parties were held during the year; the two most outstanding being the Christmas party and the Valentine's party.

The Library Assistants form an important group in the school. Their aid is essential to the library and to the students who are constantly needing books for their reference or pleasure.

The duties of the assistants consisted mainly of the charging, receiving, filing and shelving of books. They donated one hour every day or every other day for this work which taught them much about how a library operates.

It wasn't all work, however, as business meetings were usually followed by an informal party. Another pleasant responsibility was decorating the library on special occasions.

As an extra project the library assistants sent two ten dollar CARE packages of books. The group earned part of the money needed to finance their philanthropy by selling homemade candy and cookies after school, and students donated the remainder. Each contributor voted on the question as to where to send the packages. The decision reached was to send the packages to East Germany and Japan.

The assistants sponsored a bean bag throw at the Dance Carnival, and the proceeds were used to help buy small pins which were given to the members. Those students who worked every day for two semesters or on alternate days for three semesters received pins.

That dime you gave to the Red Cross in homeroom one day last fall was given to the Tuberculosis Fund. This was just one of the many charitable activities which was sponsored at Webster High by the Senior Red Cross.

This organization was made up of a representative and an alternate from each senior school homeroom. These students gave many hours of their time doing projects sponsored by the Red Cross, and in trying to increase the interest of other students towards the organization.

The Junior Red Cross started off a very busy year by its annual membership drive early in October. During the drive $112 was collected and was used to finance the Red Cross in its services.

Two afghans were completed from squares knitted by last year’s group and were turned over to the local Red Cross chapter. Since then members of the organization have been knitting squares for another afghan.

Many activities of the Red Cross centered around the Christmas season. In December eighty gift boxes were filled and sent overseas to needy children. Members also aided in collecting toys, which the boys helped paint and repair for the Toy Shop. Some of the students went to Jefferson Barracks Hospital to help decorate for their annual party, while others filled Christmas stockings for the patients. Many appreciative letters were sent to the group in thanks for their thoughtfulness.

In January word was received that the large gift chest which the Junior and Senior Red Cross sent overseas last year had been received in Germany.

The Junior Red Cross has done much for others through the diligent work of its members, who received only the satisfaction of knowing that they had helped others.

Diversified Occupations

The Diversified Occupation program at Webster was one of the largest of its kind in the state of Missouri. The students had the definite advantage of continuing their education while earning money and gaining vocational experience.

The members usually attended regular classes in the morning, which included one period of D. O. instruction. In this class the student received information concerning vocational opportunities in general as well as information relating to the individual student's occupation.

In the afternoon, the forty-two students enrolled in the course worked on various jobs. An auto mechanic, office employee, cabinet maker, nurse, photographer, doctor's assistant, and florist's assistant were among the numerous occupations represented.

By taking the course in both junior and senior years, the student may gain four credits towards graduation. The credits are allowed on the basis of class and job work, one for class and one for the actual working experience.

To gain further knowledge of business and industry, the group went on a field trip to the Lincoln-Mercury plant, the Chevrolet plant, and the Independent Packing Company.

Audio-Visual Operators

The Audio Visual Operators, better known as the A. V. O., turned in another fine year as operators of the school's audio-visual department. The group succeeded in fulfilling their purpose, which was the providing of an invaluable service to the school. The importance of their work is known to every teacher who has succeeded in stimulating his class by the showing of a well chosen movie.

In addition to showing movies in classrooms at the request of teachers, the A. V. O. sponsored several after school movies. These money raising efforts were not only enjoyed by the students who attended but the profit was used to buy accessories to improve the A. V. O.'s service to the school.

An interesting project this year was the setting up of a telephone line that connected the auditorium balcony with the main floor. This means of instant communication helps co-ordinate the sound and picture of the movies which are shown.

The experience gained in operating and servicing the delicate machines in the A. V. O. gave valuable mechanical and electrical background to the participants.

The cheerleading squad got off to an excellent start by having practice cheering sessions throughout the summer. Al Klein, being in his second year as a member of the squad, was awarded two orange stripes for his sweater. He, along with Harriet Remick, was chosen co-captain of the squad.

The cheerleaders presented several pep assemblies during the year. They also introduced several new cheers such as: "We've Got the T-E-A-M" and the "Victory" yell, both of which became very popular. Another project was an attempt to organize a Junior-Senior Pep Club.

Perhaps some of you recall having seen a very small cheerleader out on the field at some of the football games. This was little Kathy Maness, who served as the squad's mascot.

The squad had the whole-hearted support of the student body. The attendance and cooperation at the home games was marvelous, and the attendance at games away from home also was notably increased. The squad did a very fine job in leading the cheers for our teams.

During the fall of the school year, a group of girls was seen selling stationery with the statesmen emblem on it. These girls were members of the Sophomore Pep Club who were trying to raise money for their organization. In addition to selling stationery, they also raised money from their coat checking service at the Dance Carnival. With the money that was earned they chartered busses to take them to watch the "B" team games which were not played at Webster.

Most of the ninety girls who composed the club have been members since their freshman year. The purpose of their organization was to promote school spirit towards the sophomore sports, but at the basketball games the Sophomore Pep Club joined forces with the Senior Pep Club in cheering the varsity teams to victory.

In the spring when some of their members tried out for sophomore cheerleaders, a group who had been cheerleaders during their freshman year, taught the different cheers and motions to the others. During the year the members had been learning the words to the cheers at their regular meetings.

Their outstanding interest in their school and club have made this group one of the most successful organizations at Webster.

For many years there has been a Scribblers Club made up of students of grades nine through twelve. Its purpose is to stimulate literary activity and to promote original writing.

Every other Wednesday, the Scribblers held their meeting in Room 107. After members had read their original stories, poems, and plays, the club discussed each work. A vote was then taken to determine who had made the best contribution to the meeting, and the winner was awarded a prize.

Not all the activities were of a serious nature. The Scribblers often enlivened their meeting by playing literary games, and, of course, at each meeting refreshments were served.

The group held two outdoor excursions: a picnic early in October at Blackburn Park, and a trip to Cherokee Cave in the spring. On this second excursion the Science Club members joined with the Scribblers. In the study of outstanding writers, the members made a trip to the home of Eugene Field, whose home is a museum in St. Louis.

During the 1953 season the Webster Groves High School football squad compiled a record of 3 wins, 3 ties, and 3 losses.

The team was selected during the humid months of August and September from nearly fifty sophomore, junior and senior aspirants by Coaches Ray Moss and Leonard Bryant. Throughout the season the team trained diligently, and the traditional Turkey Day game against Kirkwood, at the close of the season, resulted in a 0 to 0 deadlock.

Many outstanding performances were turned in by individual players, and Dick Schweider was selected for the All District berth at end. Highlights of the season were provided by a trip to Quincy, Illinois, and the annual football banquet at which Don Buercklin was elected captain.

During 1952-1953 Captain Bob Woodson skillfully piloted his basketball squad to the most successful season in the history of Webster Groves High School.

The Webster team, coached by Tyke Yates, met with only one defeat in their schedule of twenty-nine games. The Yatesmen captured the Suburban League title as well as first honors in the Christmas tourney at Normandy and the Webster Invitational Tournament. Following their sweep of the regional playoffs, the team went undefeated to Columbia where they placed third in the Missouri State finals.

The starting five included four seniors: Bob Woodson, Don Carter, Taylor Stoneman and Jim Krebs. Herschel O'Kelley, a junior, rounded out the squad.
The eight members of the 1952 Golf Team won the distinction of taking top honors in the district golf tournament. The team, aided by the coaching of Tyke Yates, clubbed their way to an undefeated season.

Playing their interschool matches in four-somes of two Webster golfers and two opponents, the Webster "hackers" carried away much individual recognition in addition to team honors. The regular playing season was brought to a close at the annual spring Sports Banquet held late in May at which Dick Shaiper was announced as captain of the squad.

The only returning lettermen from the 1952 championship squad were Gene Weinischke and Jack Brooks.

Tennis, a relatively new sport at Webster, began to be more extensively recognized through increased competition in the sport last season. The 1952 tennis squad, coached by Mel Parks, played in several inter-school matches, both on homeground at Memorial Park and on their opponents' courts. The racquet-men had three victories to their credit, and met with eight defeats in the course of their regular season.

The season was climaxed by the Country Day Invitational Tournament, in which Webster participated; and following the regular season, Fred Deming was elected Captain for the 1953 squad.

With increased interest and participation in the sport, Coach Parks is looking forward to a larger squad in coming seasons. There will be five returning lettermen as material for the 1953 squad.

Coach Lenard Bryant's 1953 grapplers were selected in late November and continued their matches through the State Tournament in February.

Throughout the season the squad of thirty-one worked out each day after school, practicing holds and techniques. After twelve scheduled matches, the team finished the season with eight wins and four losses.

The State Wrestling Meet, held this year in the Roberts Gym, left Webster with second place honors. Individual recognition was given Bob Batz and Captain Don Ramsey as State Champions in their respective weight classes.

Many of the boys earned major letters and Webster Groves can look forward to a well-filled roster next fall.

Girls Hockey

Webster was one of eight schools from St. Louis County which participated in the annual Hockey Sports Day at Washington University. The three class teams from Webster played with all the skill they had acquired in this exhausting and precise sport. The senior team defeated Normandy, the junior team tied Ritenour, and the sophomore team lost to University City. Those playing were not the only beneficiaries; by watching the games, many girls learned a great deal regarding the techniques used in playing field hockey.

Only girls who had played intra-mural hockey were eligible for class teams, and the varsity team was chosen from the combined class team players.

The varsity team played opponents from University City, Ritenour, Normandy, Kirkwood, Maplewood and Bayless. All of the home games were played at Memorial Park field which is one of the finest in the county.

Interest in field hockey, as one of the major girls sports, was stimulated by the competitive games played with other schools and by the G. A. A. membership in the U. S. Field Hockey Association.

Basketball again ranked high in popularity among the girls participating in the sports program. The game, which involves a great deal of stamina, precision and alertness in handling the ball, was a challenge to many of the girls. Several hundred participated, and many developed the necessary skill to become members of the class and varsity teams. The game was enjoyed by all.

Webster teams faced Maplewood, Ladue, Kirkwood, University City, Clayton, Ferguson, Hancock and Ritenour. The senior team won all of its games, and the juniors won one, lost two and tied one. The sophomores won three games and lost two. When the three class teams had played all their schedule, a varsity team was chosen from the most outstanding players on these teams.

Basketball Sports Day was held on February 14. Class teams from nine county schools competed in the games which were held in Webster’s four gyms. This competition furnished a rousing climax to the season and gave the players renewed enthusiasm for the season to come.

Volleyball

Many different types of people participate in volleyball with equal degrees of success; therefore, a great many girls took part in Webster's intra-mural volleyball games. This shows that volleyball is one of the most popular of girls sports.

The skills of volleyball are less numerous than those required by other sports. Nevertheless, it presents a challenge to an alert, agile player.

The sophomore, junior, and senior class teams, of approximately twelve players each, are selected from the many intra-mural volleyball teams. These class teams played class teams from other county high schools.

The varsity team players were chosen from the members of the three class teams. This team also played varsity teams from other county schools.

Each year several girls take the intra-mural rating tests sponsored by the St. Louis Board of Woman Officials. After passing a written examination and a practical application test, these girls were qualified to referee intra-mural, class and varsity games.

Softball

Any nice afternoon during the spring a group of girls could be found playing softball on the ball fields in back of school. The girls that were playing were on intra-mural teams, class teams or the varsity.

The intra-mural teams were open to any girl who was interested in playing softball. Each team played four games, each against a different opponent. From the intra-mural teams the individual class teams were chosen, and from these teams the varsity squads were selected. All the class team home games, and all varsity home games were played at Blackburn Park, where it was possible to have two games in play at one time.

Most of the class and varsity games were very interesting to watch. The rivalry between Kirkwood and Webster was evident in the game, and both sides fought extremely hard for a victory. This was one of the most exciting games to watch, not only because of the rivalry, but also because of the ability that was shown.

Softball is one of the more popular girls sports and the enthusiasm shown in the games leads one to believe that it will continue to be.

The Bowling Club enjoyed another successful year in 1952-1953. Only members of the G. A. A. were eligible for this sport, and seventy-five girls joined this organization and received G. A. A. points for their efforts.

The club was divided into fifteen teams consisting of five players each, and each team chose its captain. They bowled at alleys of their own choosing, and turned in their scores to the sponsor of the organization. One of the most outstanding and attractive features of the Bowling Club is that it is run by the members themselves.

Two tournaments were held — one each semester. Seven rounds of bowling, including one bye, constituted a tournament. Each round was bowled at a separate time, and the team had the privilege of bowling one, two or three games per round and turning in the best score. All five members of the team could participate but only the four highest scores were counted in tournament competition.

The Bowling Club was reorganized each semester with a different group of members. The year's activities started in September and closed in May, and the skill of its members increased each month. The highest score recorded was 119.

The Girls' Athletics Association is a group organized to increase the interest and participation in girls sports.

Early in fall a rush party was held for the sophomores and any new students in the senior school who were interested. At this party the rules of the organization were explained to the prospective members. Each girl first had to participate in after-school sports until she had gained the one-hundred points required for membership. On becoming a member she had to continue to gain fifty points each semester in order to remain in the organization. Attendance at meetings, which were held in the Big Study Hall, was required; and only girls with exceptionally valid excuses were excused.

Probably the G. A. A. project most familiar to those outside the organization was the selling of refreshments at all home football games. There are several other annual functions, however. In the fall the members brought their fathers to "Dads' Night," where supper was served, and activities such as square dancing and party games highlighted the evening. In the spring the mothers took the spotlight at the "Awards Banquet" which was held in the cafeteria. Awards for various accomplishments were presented at this time, and the most coveted of these were the gold cups. The cups were awarded to those who had gained through membership on class and varsity teams, officiating, etc., the necessary two thousand points. Another annual affair was the Kampus King Dance at which a senior boy was crowned Kampus King.

THE CLASS OF 1953 IN 1963

The class of ’53 has been scattered to every corner of the globe in the past 10 years, but to give an idea of what some of the members of that class are now doing, our reporter has searched and searched to send you this information.

Miss Marjorie Burger, noted concert pianist, is now on tour in Europe. However, she is expected to be back in the states in time to play at the inauguration of our new President-Elect Dick Clement.

Also in Washington is Jim Brown, who recently was appointed head of the F. B. I. Jim has been working with the F. B. I. since he left Webster High School, where he gained much experience by assisting the student guides in tracking down criminals.

Don Ramsey, wrestling champion, draws the attention of all the loyal Webster fans every Saturday night as he grapples his way to more and more victories. Also in the spotlight are Don Buercklin, All American quarterback, and Jim Krebs, one-man basketball team. When not playing basketball, Jim spends his time repairing basketball nets. He feels safe in this job because he is assured of no falls from a ladder.

In New York, we occasionally see the famous Powers model, Liz Schneider, and her friend Camilla Wright, who is now appearing in five shows a night on Broadway Stage. Surprisingly enough on the Metropolitan Opera Stage in Martha Stotecker. (In high school Martha couldn’t sing a note.)

Another familiar sight to everyone is local speedthrift, Barth Kleinshmidt, who spends much of his fabulous bankroll playing the horses. Gene Wein-ischke, one boy who hasn’t changed; is still seen making the rounds with all the Hollywood beauties.

School teacher and spinster Harriet Remwick is reported now teaching MacBeth to all her students, and reliving the days when she studied the play herself back at Webster.

An Academy Award was presented last month to Bob Lindholm as cameraman for the filming of “Why an Orangutan Swings from the Trees,” a sequel to his other award-winner “Life at Webster.”

This is the scoop of the group of ’53, but wherever they are, we can be sure that they are enjoying themselves in whatever they are doing (as usual).

STUDENT BEHAVIOR REPORT

The Council of Guided Stooges (Senior School Counterpart of the military court-martial), has reached the apex of its hitherto unknown goal: Abolition of the Prudent Guides. (Sometimes referred to as “wise-guides”)

This announcement, made only last week, has already produced startling reactions. Hundreds of students are now freed from the shackles of walking to lunch. It has been estimated that the school lunchroom has now tripled their business, since students are now so anxious to cut into line that many of them go through the lunch-line four and even five times just to enjoy to the utmost the singular pleasure of unrestricted line-cutting.

Boxing in the recent sixth hour assembly continued in such gigantic proportions, and was apparently so much enjoyed by the rowdy factions that they couldn’t participate in regular basketball. The equipment needed for the game consists of two buckets, a basketball, and four men, each of whom is equipped with a pogo stick. The buckets are hung fifteen feet in the air. The object of this game is to throw the ball through the bottom of the bucket so that it goes out the top.

What will come next? Ominous rumors have it that “Open Season” will soon be declared on seventh graders who are constantly scurrying through the halls with complete lack of respect for the more weathered veterans of this institution.

It is feared that with the dissolution of the Council of Guided Stooges will come complete extinction of the student animal. Already, shocking increases in the mortality rate have resulted from the lifting of the Concealed Weapons Regulation and Dueling Laws, and it appears that only the graduated of June ’53, the very group which brought this terror upon the school, can consider themselves safe from the ravages of new student self-assertion.

Pogo Bucketball Squad

Finally Wins Over Rival Burpwood

Only Teams in Nation Battle for Top Honors

In an action-packed game last week the smashing Pogo Bucketball team at Webster High School won the National Championship when they beat their most bitter rivals, Burpwood. The four man team, Little Yummy Crebs, Pester Tahleimer, Hairy Ditty? (yes, he did!) and Heath Ennschmidt, showed skills which had never before been accomplished in “Pogo Ball”. No one on the squad is over 5’ 2½”.

The game of “Pogo Ball” is played with two teams and is very similar to the popular old game of basketball. It was introduced at Webster by a coach who felt sorry for the small boys who couldn’t participate in regular basketball. The equipment needed for the game consists of two buckets, a basketball, and four men, each of whom is equipped with a pogo stick. The buckets are hung fifteen feet in the air. The object of this game is to throw the ball through the bottom of the bucket so that it goes out the top. Each player rides a pogo stick so that he can jump higher, and thus get the ball through the bottom of the bucket more easily. The most difficult part of the game is in trying to make the first points, since the bottom of the bucket is not removed. Although the ball weighs fifty pounds it is very hard to knock a hole in the bottom of the bucket. Many players have been unsuccessful from their pogo sticks in valiant attempts to make the first bucket.

In winning this, their only important victory of a long season of play, the team ran joyfully to their coach shouting their victory yell “EdomperSiu Litiephinxzwpq o” or “I Go Pogo!”

STUFF POLICY

In the past years this paper has strived to attain the highest standards of grade school journalism by providing its readers with fractional news, boring editorials, and various forms of poor feature entertainment.

The 1953 Staff will endeavor to continue this policy. We will do our utmost to truthfully misreport all school events whether they be social, scholastic, or athletic; and to maintain an editorial page which will serve as a deterrent to all students. Editorially, we will attempt to write on all school problems which are neither debatable nor controversial.
We will also do our best to provide reader disinterest for all students from grades 7 thru 12.

IN THE GRIME-LIGHT

In this issue, we find Alexander Goodfellow basking in the grime-light. Alex, as he prefers to be called by his friends, felt that he was very deserving of this recognition, and said in his own humble words, "You couldn't have chosen a better fellow." To be earmarked for this singular honor, Alex has maintained a strong scholastic average (he stands...stands?...277 in his class of nearly 270 students) and has been a participant in many extra-curricular activities. His notable accomplishments in high school include the Howard Verby Award, Complete Disregard of Safety in the Halls.

Alexander has to his credit more than 132 students killed, maimed, or merely angered by his daring actions. Alex is also an expert marksman, and his friends hold high regard for his ability to shoot bull. Throughout his school day, Alex is to be commended for his strict maintenance of an attitude of complete indifference toward his teachers. When asked about his favorite pastime, Alex briefly (very briefly) considered his studies, and settled on sleeping as the thing he liked most to do. His true love was weakly alluded to by Alex as "a sweet little (little?—7' 5", 234 lbs.) bundle of nothing."

Alexander's plans for the future include another try at the twelfth grade, and then a few happy years at Whippin-choppin' State University, in the State of Confusion!

Faculty Footnotes

Mr. Boyd was visiting the Chemistry Lab at Washington University. In the course of his tour, he asked the instructor what the students were working on. "Their problem is to try to find the universal solvent," he was told. "That might be a good idea," conceded Mr. Boyd, "But what would you keep it in?"

Mr. Settle was trying to impress Jim with the importance of mathematics. "It's a fundamental and true science," he explained. "For instance, it shows us that if one man can build a shed in twelve days, twelve men can build it in one day."

But Jim was not convinced.

"Then if one ship can cross the ocean in twelve days," he reasoned, "I suppose twelve ships can cross it in one day, I don't believe it, and I still don't like mathematics."

"Now Bob," said Mr. Shelton during one of his classes, "Please name all the states in the Union." Bob started off confidently, but about halfway through he began to stumble. "Come, come," said the teacher, "I could name them all easily when I was your age."

"Sure you could," Bob replied, "there were only thirteen of them then."

Mr. Verby was briefly substituting in a history class for a teacher who had been delayed by "The Great Webster Snowstorm" last winter. In the course of his remarks, he attempted to point out the different degrees of punishment. "Now if I were whipped," he questioned, "what would that be?" About half the class responded, "That would be corporal punishment." "And if I were beheaded?" continued Doctor Verby.

This time the entire class responded in an enthusiastic roar, "Oh, that would be capital!"
