Webster Memories

It seems so long since that first year . . .
They guide us in our school career . . .
Fine sportsmanship developed here...
Strength for a future not quite clear . . .
Honor

A fine sense of what is just and right with readiness to apply it to one's own conduct in relation to others.

Dedication

From these familiar shadows will come memories, our echoes of the past. It is to the students who created these memories that the Echo of 1955 is dedicated.

Fraulein Antonje Rottgermann
Munster, Germany

Through the Fulbright Foundation the schools of Ibbenburen, Westphalia, Germany and those of Webster Groves, Missouri have been enjoying an exchange of teachers this year. Fraulein Antonie Rottgermann has been teaching German and Modern History here and Miss Gertrude Fiehler has been teaching English in Ibbenburen.

Fraulein Rottgermann has an education that is highly esteemed by all who know her. She spent eight years in a Gymnasien for girls in Warendorf, and attended the Universities of Munster and Innsbruck. After two years of apprentice teaching she received the title of Studien Assessorin in 1953.

As she tells of hiking, bicycling and swimming, her favorite sports, one gets a glimpse of the variety and beauty of the country-side of Westphalia. Also, one has a sense of the age of European civilization when looking at the farm buildings and the home that has been the residence of her family for over three hundred years. The students of her classes and the many different groups to which she has talked have been highly privileged in being able to get from her a broadened outlook on life.

With her never-failing good-humor, her vivacity and her keen interest in everything, she has been an excellent ambassador of good will. She has made many talks to adult groups such as the community service clubs, and organizations from various churches as well as to many scout groups. To carry back a true picture of what she has seen in America she has taken worlds of photographs, bought hundreds of slides and books and pictures of all sorts. Not only has she helped to interpret modern Germany to us but she has helped us sometimes to see ourselves a little as others see us.
Each year new fields of study are opening at Webster. This year, for the first time, German and psychology were added to the many senior school electives.

The curriculum of the seventh and eighth grade students, however, remains much the same from year to year. In these grades the basic courses such as math, science, English, and social studies predominate. The boys may take shop and the girls, home economics, but all are required to take music. Geography is also included for one semester. Although this program is not very flexible, it does provide the student with a wide-spread knowledge on which he may base his choice of studies when he reaches the ninth grade level.

At this level, courses become largely of the elective nature with the exception of a few which are required. These are three years of English, one of American History, and one of social-studies. Physical education is also required. With these as a start, the student's tentative program for the next four years, which must give him sixteen credits, is planned at a conference which includes the student, his parents, and his counselor. During the years a series of such conferences are held for the purpose of reaffirming or changing decisions made at the original conference.

Among the many electives available are four foreign languages: Spanish, French, Latin, and German. In the field of mathematics are four semesters of algebra, plane and solid geometry, and trigonometry. The social studies area includes ancient, modern, and American History, geography, and American problems. Chemistry, physics, biology, and general science are offered in the natural sciences. Art, dramatics, public speaking, and music are other opportunities. The practical arts include metal work, woodwork, plastics, drafting, and home economics. Typing, shorthand, business law and clerical work are the commercial subjects, and a co-operative occupational education program is provided.
LYNNETTE BEALL

PAUL STEIN
President of Senior School

DAVID DYSART
President of Junior School
For the seventh consecutive year the Guidance Council has offered Webster High School an organization of which to be proud.

Student government is exercised in many other schools in the St. Louis area, but Webster is one of the few to have a guidance council.

The Council is made up of seven representatives from the senior school: three seniors, one junior, one sophomore, the president of the Student Body, and the Senior School President. The two presidents act as co-chairmen of the group.

Students who have broken school rules are reported by student guides who were appointed by the Council. These offenders meet with the organization to discuss the offense from both points of view. Friendly advice is then given to the student along with suggestions for overcoming the same mistake in the future. One of the unusual points about the Council is that it administers no punishments, but gives only advice and guidance, as the name implies. The main objective of the organization is to make our school a better place to attend.

Stein, Beall, Sturges
Senior Student Council

The Senior Student Council was guided by Lynnette Beall, President of both schools, and Paul Stein, Senior School President. The council, which is composed of members elected from their respective grades, held meetings during first hour on alternate days.

The Council had many activities for which it deserves credit. Among these were the dawn patrol, lost and found, coke machine, activity tickets, and many other projects. Some of the more important activities which the council sponsors are the Dance Carnival, Color Day, and the Alum and new student parties. This year several new projects were started: the snack bar, a pep band at the basketball games, and special cheering sections at sport events. These are just a few of the many invaluable services the Sr. Student Council performs for the school.

An assembly was given by the Student Council explaining the advantages, which the council provides. This created a better understanding between the students, the faculty, and the council.

The Junior Student Council, under the guidance of Dave Dysart, worked to promote the general welfare of the Junior School. The Council is composed of seventy-six members. There are thirty-eight regular members; each homeroom elects one regular member and one alternate. The Council meets after school on Wednesdays.

Problems such as cafeteria behavior, conduct in the assemblies, and similar subjects were discussed.

The main project of the Junior Student Council was a Junior School talent assembly. This was a big success, and we hope it will be continued in the future. The Council was fundamental in the magazine sales campaign through its promotion of Junior School interest and help in forming the students of the progress of the campaign.

This year a new activity was started by the Council; it was the Junior Guidance Council. It consisted of six members who held meetings after school whenever they were needed. This group gave friendly advice to individuals who had broken school rules. It was very well accepted and will be continued in the future.
The Junior School has three separate groups of guides. These groups are sponsored by Miss Brantley, Mr. Brucker, and Mr. Shapleigh. The guides perform an invaluable service to the school each year. The lunchroom guides keep the cafeteria in order and prepared for the next lunch period. They also maintain order in the hall.

Another service was the help of several junior school girls in the operation of the Lost and Found.

Commencement 1954
This year was a very active and interesting one for the junior class. The first project was the Touchdown Dance, which was held in September after a football game. Other money making projects were selling Webster bracelets, selling balloons at the Turkey Day game, and handling the basketball throw at the Dance Carnival.

During the year conferences were held with the counselor, student, and parents to plan each student’s senior year.

The highlight of the year was the Junior Prom which was held on April 23rd in the Robert’s Gym.

The class closed the year with a very successful picnic.

The sophomores started one of their busiest years by selling Webster book covers to raise money for their treasury. They repeated this profitable enterprise at the beginning of the second semester.

In the sports light, the "B" football team compiled a record of five wins and two losses while the sophomore basketball team seeded first in the district. Firm support for these sports was provided by the sophomore girls' Pep Club.

In addition to the Pep Club, students belonged to any of the organizations such as Student Council, French Club, and many others.

This year the ninth grade has undergone numerous changes. First of all is the method of planning high school subjects; instead of planning for all four years at the end of the eighth grade, the members are now planning for only one. Then at the end of the ninth grade, they will plan their subjects for the next three years. The purpose of this plan is to give them a better idea of high school subjects as a whole. Another change has taken place in their planning of Sutter's parties. At the beginning of the year two students were elected to be chairmen of a committee to plan these parties. Throughout the year they worked with different groups of fourteen students on each of their six parties.

Of course the class still has its usual activities such as the team, the cheerleaders, the Pep Club, and Intramural sports. Besides these, however, new clubs have been organized and the grade as a whole has taken many steps forward.

Why so happy?

The eighth grade, under the guidance of Miss McClain, started their second year at Webster High.

Along with the other courses, the students were required to take English and social studies, which are combined and called "bloc."

One of their favorite activities was the Sutter's Dancing class, which gave several parties over the course of the year. Intramural sports took up a great deal of the students' time after school.

The class had several talent assemblies which featured record pantomines, piano solos, vocalists, and dancers. This year's eighth grade which was the largest ever to come to Webster, will be divided between this high school and the new Hixson Junior High School.

The following is a list of the students:

Long before school started, the cheerleaders could be found at someone's house practicing the cheers. They had several new cheers this year. Among them was "Dynamo," which has become a favorite to all.

For Football games the cheerleaders decorated the goal posts with orange and black streamers and led parades to the field. The parades added a great deal of spirit to the crowd. The cheerleaders led the spirited crowds in cheers around the bonfire at the pep rally. On Color Day they could be seen walking through the halls wearing their "W" sweaters and black slacks.

The cheerleaders gave many pep assemblies throughout the year; usually a separate assembly was given for the junior school.

This year we had three returning cheerleaders. They were Jo Denty, Gale Eddie, and Dottie Shore. At the Turkey Day Game Webster had a card section, and at the first touchdown balloons were released into the air. White shirts with orange ties were worn by the students at the basketball games. These things helped to make the past year one of the best and most spirited at Webster.
Membership in the Music Club has become a coveted honor for those who are especially talented in solo and ensemble performance. The aim of this club is to create an active and intelligent interest in the art of music among parents, relatives, friends, and fellow students.

In the meetings, which were held once a month in a member's home, general business was carried on and followed by musical entertainment. Some of these performances were given by members of the organization, and others were given by those desiring membership.

All nominees for membership are regularly enrolled students in a senior high school musical organization. Membership is considered a reward for meritorious participation in our school's orchestra, band, or chorus. It is also an evidence of the student's desire to be associated with other high schools students who are doing superior work in instrumental music.

This club has been active since 1942, when Mr. Werner, Director of Orchestra in the school system, and a group of students from the high school orchestra formed the first Chamber Music Club.
Statesmen Show Band

President .................Jim Pierce
Vice-President .......... Dave Marple
Secretary .................Barb Smith
Treasurer .................Don Fagerburg
Drum Major ..............Jim Wallace

For many years Webster has been proud of its marching band, but this year it had even greater cause to feel proud of the new Statesmen Show Band. Under the able direction of Mr. Henry Lemcke and a new director, Mr. William Carter, the band developed many new maneuvers and ideas. One of these was the use of a central theme around which to build a show.

Composed of 100 members, the band worked hard to accomplish new and difficult formations. They marched in the Kirkwood Homecoming Parade and performed at eight of the 54-55 season football games, lending much to the excitement and school spirit. The band also took a 128 mile trip to Quincy, Illinois.

Besides its functional activities, the band members enjoyed several social activities such as a hayride, a Christmas dance, and a spring picnic.

Because of the time and effort spent by everyone in rehearsals and planning, the band closed a very successful season and added a great deal to everyone's enjoyment.
Concert Orchestra

President ...................... Lewis Kinstler
Vice-President ............ Ronnie Williams
Secretary .................... Ina Risch
Treasurer ..................... Carol Sue Gillum

The goal of every music student who has diligently practiced is to become a member of the Concert Orchestra. Again this year its members carried on the tradition of bringing fine orchestral accomplishment to Webster.

As always the Concert Orchestra was invited to take a trip to Columbia, Missouri, for the String Clinic at Missouri University. This clinic was directed by Vladimir Golschmann, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and George C. Wilson, orchestra conductor of Missouri University.

During the Christmas season, a program was presented at Bayless High School in which six of the orchestra alumni returned to play.

The orchestra ably furnished the music for, "Oklahoma!", and later in the spring the members prepared for a radio and television appearance. Another tradition of the orchestra was the annual Spring Concert, in which the graduating seniors were featured in solo positions.

Being in the orchestra required perseverance and the ability to stick to one's daily practicing. Orchestra members broadened their musical understanding by playing representative works of pre-classic to contemporary composers.

Concert, given for the public, was another highlight of the year.

Soloists, trios, quartets, sextets, and chamber music groups performed competitively in the St. Louis County Music Festival. Several of the Concert Band Members were selected to be in the All County High School Band, which was composed of outstanding instrumentalists from the high schools in St. Louis County.

By again carrying on the tradition of fine musical accomplishments, the Symphonic Band members felt that they not only gained much musically, but contributed greatly to school life at Webster.

Junior Orchestra

The Junior Orchestra consisted of instrumentalists from the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades. As a group the orchestra played arrangements of the classics and standard orchestra repertoire.

In addition to playing different types of music, the orchestra did research and technical work.

The students received rhythmical training and scale practices to improve their ensemble playing. They also studied the lives of various composers, music history, and music theory.

Each individual had an opportunity to develop his own technical proficiency and poise by playing a solo each six weeks. Seating tests were held, and considerable rivalry existed for the first chair positions in various sections.

To give the members experience and confidence in playing, the orchestra performed at several elementary school programs and at the St. Louis County Music Festival. The Junior Orchestra also gave a spring program. Particularly outstanding members of the orchestra were chosen to play with the Concert Orchestra.

Director—Mr. Henry Lemcke

The Junior Band this year consisted of 110 members. One of the most important events of the year was the participation in the junior school section of the St. Louis County Music Festival, held annually in April. At the festival, Junior Band members not only played with the band, but took part in small ensembles and solos.

The band also had the privilege of playing with the Marching Band at several football games, the most important of which was the Turkey Day Game. This was for the special effect created by the orange Marching Band uniforms and the black Junior Band uniforms.

Participation of several Junior Band members in the talent assembly proved excellent training, and a specialty group was formed and named the Jr. High Novelty Band. The Band ended its season with a Spring Concert.

Nineteen fifty-five marks the twenty-fifth successful year of the Thespians organization at Webster. It can certainly be said that the club has carried out its purpose of the advancement of dramatic arts in secondary schools.

Thespians is an Honorary dramatic society. To be qualified for entrance, one hundred hours must be spent in dramatics work. Thirty of these have to be spent on behind the scenes work such as props and sets. Its members are also required to have average grades and a real interest in dramatics.

There are three initiations every year; each major production is followed by the initiation of the new members. Since Thespians is a non-secret, non-social organization, the public is welcome to attend these formal initiations.

It has been customary for Thespians to produce three major plays every year. This year they were, "The Night of January 16th," "The Great Big Doorstep," and "Mrs. McThing." The group, with the help of their sponsor, is certainly to be commended for their fine work in the 1954-1955 year.
ON BORROWED TIME

The last play of the 1953-1954 season was On Borrowed Time. The story concerned a little boy, Pud, and his grandparents. Because Pud's grandfather had done a good deed, he was to be rewarded by having any wish granted. This was where the character representing Death showed up. Everything he touched died, and he had come for Pud's grandparents. Pud's grandfather succeeded in wishing Death to stay in a tree, but then nothing could die. Finally he had to let Death down (because of an accident Pud was in) and they were all taken by him.

THE GREAT BIG DOORSTEP

The Great Big Doorstep tells the story of the Crochet family of Louisiana and their struggles to find and possess the house which matches the doorstep that they found in the Mississippi River.

After finally finding the house, the determined family strives valiantly to earn enough money to buy it, but they are constantly confronted by problems which prevent them from making their purchase.

However, when a woman florist from New Orleans decides to buy the beautiful lilies in Mrs. Crochet's garden, the problem is at last solved, and the happy family is able to see the wonderful dream come true.

NIGHT OF JANUARY 16th

The play took place in a courtroom. Bjorn Faulkner had been murdered and his secretary, Karen Andrew, was being tried. Prosecuting her was Mrs. Faulkner and her father. There were many witnesses; those appearing for Karen said that her boss planned to meet her in South America, and that Karen did not know he was dead until she was told. Those appearing against her said that a body was seen being pushed from Karen's apartment by Karen and that the body was the late Faulkner.

The jury to decide the case was selected before the play from people in the audience.
Dramatics Club

The Dramatics Club was a new organization this year organized to fulfill the needs of students interested in dramatics. Any student in the school maintaining the standards of membership could join and become an active member.

Members were required to go through a probationary period during which they proved their interest. This probationary period was then followed by three stages of membership. A member with from zero to thirty hours was an "understudy"; those who had accumulated thirty to seventy-five hours were "troupers"; and seventy-five hours of dramatics placed members in the highest stage, a "master." Each of these three ranks had its particular advantages and privileges.

The club had its first big party at Christmas time. At this party the club first made organizational plans. Following the business meeting, different members of the club presented impromptu skits; refreshments were passed out; and a wonderful time was had by all.

The Dramatics Club gave a chance for those who had common interests in presenting plays to get together and gain valuable experience.

The National Forensic League started the school year by conducting the annual "Junior Town Meeting of the Air." Their subject was "Should Inter-Collegiate Sports Be Abolished?" Two members took the affirmative side of the question and two the negative side.

The team visited many of the St. Louis and county high schools to participate in debates, and frequently they were host to the debate teams.

Before the close of school for the Christmas holidays, the members held a tea for the N. F. L. alums.

This year the Student Congress was again held at Webster. Students from St. Louis and the entire state attended and discussed problems in the same method as does the United States Congress.

In March the club went to Missouri University, in Columbia, to defend its state title.

To end a very successful year, the club held its annual picnic. At that time the officers for next year were elected.

The Webster Echo put out an exceptionally fine paper this year under the deft supervision of Mrs. Lanagan. The paper itself was 15 ½ inches by five columns. It came out ten times during the year and averaged four to six pages. The special Christmas issue was ten pages.

The paper met expenses through the magazine sales campaign fund, activity ticket fund, subscriptions, and advertisements. The paper netted almost seven-hundred dollars from the sale of programs at the Turkey Day game. The annual Paper Doll Prom, which is sponsored by the paper, was held in late October. This was another source of income.

A Christmas party was given for the alums of the paper. Entertainment was presented and punch and cookies were served.

The staff met on alternate days, receiving one-half credit for its journalism work.

To bring a successful year to close, a banquet for the entire staff was held in late May at the Green Parrot to introduce the new editors.

One of the most coveted honors bestowed on students at Webster High School is an invitation to membership in Quill and Scroll. This honorary journalistic society selects its members from students active on the staff on The Echo or The Webster Echo.

A student striving for membership in Quill and Scroll must prove his worthiness by fulfilling these requirements: he must be scholastically in the upper third of his class; he must have shown proof of outstanding accomplishment in some phase of high school journalism; he must be highly recommended by a supervisor of journalism in high school; and his application for membership must be approved by a national officer.

During the first half of the year there were only three members in Quill and Scroll, but in the second semester the membership swelled to full strength once again.

Every student truly interested in journalism aims for membership in Quill and Scroll for it is the recognition of distinctive performance.

At the beginning of the year, the editors outlined the various duties necessary for the proper functioning of The Echo staff to the members of the group.

There were several methods by which money was raised for the yearbook. The first project to be carried out was the selling of advertisements in the local business areas. The money derived from these sales was the most important source of income for the book. In addition to advertisements, the staff sponsored the candy sales in the Senior School entrance every day after school, and initiated the new idea of popular "Dunk-Em" booth at the Dance Carnival.

One of the most important social events of the school year is the ECHO Coronation. A court consisting of eighteen girls and six special maids was chosen by the senior class. The Echo Queen was then selected by the sophomore, junior, and senior grades. The theme of the dance was "The Easter Fantasy," and it proved to be quite unusual and successful.

The final duty of the staff was to give out the finished yearbooks. This was done a few days before school was over in order to give time for the traditional signing.

The A Cappella Choir has always been one of the outstanding organizations at school, and this year was no exception. Founded in 1934, the Choir has always been known for its fine performances and for the love of singing felt by all its members.

Under the able and spirited direction of Miss Replogle, the Choir started the year off by singing for many of the local P. T. A. groups and service clubs. Simultaneously, they prepared for the Vesper services which, through the years, have become one of the best loved traditions in the community.

Then, after the first of the year, eager plans and preparations were made for the musical comedy, "Oklahoma!" Choir unity and ability was easily seen by the fact that each member had at least a small part in the production.

The Choir year closed with the annual swimming party, giving the seniors time to say goodbye and the remainder of the group time to make plans for another successful year.

Again this year, Beginning Choir had a successful and interesting season under the direction of Miss Replogle.

The group started the year by meeting at one of the members' homes for an evening of fun. Hilarious skits were presented, and refreshments were then served while the new choir, sitting in a circle, sang familiar songs and became acquainted with one another. This evening not only established plans for the coming year, but many new friendships as well.

Beginning Choir's most important project was the preparation of their part in the Vesper services. It was the first time that many of the students had ever participated in this beautiful Christmas pageant, and each individual showed his appreciation and interest by striving for perfection throughout the hours of practice.

Perhaps the foremost purpose of any school-sponsored activity is to create a feeling of group spirit and cooperation among students. Working together and singing for everyone's benefit, Beginning Choir fulfilled this purpose.

Christmas Vespers

For the eighteenth consecutive year, the beautiful Christmas Vespers were presented. They were given in the high school auditorium, December 19th through December 23rd.

In 1932 a sacred program was presented by the glee club. For the next two years, an orchestral program took its place. In 1935 "Why the Chimes Rang," the Christmas story, was presented in pageantry. This eventually developed into the Vespers of today.

Four choral groups provided the traditional Christmas music for the services: the A Cappella Choir, Beginning Choir, Boys' Choir, and the Angels' Chorus. Aside from the choirs, there were almost forty members in the pageant. These people were chosen from the student body. However, some of the most important people in Vespers were behind the scenes: the light crew, stage crew, and those in charge of props.

As usual, five performances were given: two for the public and three for the high school students.

The annual presentation of the story of the birth of Christ has come to mean a great deal to not only the people in this community, but to many in other cities. It helps to remind everyone of the true meaning of Christmas.
This year the musical comedy, “Oklahoma!” by Rodgers and Hammerstein, was presented by the A Cappella Choir.

The action takes place in the Indian territory, now the state of Oklahoma. The plot is centered around the rivalry of a sullen farmhand, Jud Fry, and a handsome cowboy, Curly McClain, for the love of young Laurey Williams. Meanwhile, Laurey’s best friend, Ado Annie, is trying to decide between a cowboy, Will Parker, and Ali Hakim, the peddler.

The outcome of these problems is finally reached with the wedding of Curly and Laurey and—the reunion of Ado Annie and Will.

Many ever popular tunes such as “Surrey with the Fringe on the Top,” “Oh, What a Beautiful Morning,” “Kansas City,” “People Will Say We’re in Love,” “I Cain’t Say No,” and “Oklahoma!” filled the show with wonderful entertainment.

The cast, chorus, orchestra, and stage and light crews started working in January, and did a wonderful job of maintaining the high standard set by previous musical productions.
This year was a particularly outstanding one for the Latin Club, the oldest continuous club in the school. It was particularly honored because the club's president, Dick Page, was elected as the first president of the Jr. Classical League at the National Convention in San Antonio, Texas. Dick is planning this year's convention, to be held in Cedar Falls, Iowa. Another future event is the Missouri State Classical Convention at St. Louis University, which many Latin students will attend.

Again this year the Latin Club had an auction and cookie sale to help raise the Farmington Orphanage fund to 125 dollars. The club sent a Webcor phonograph, a mirror, and several bicycles; and was invited to visit the orphanage in the spring.

After having many interesting meetings, the club climaxed the year with the annual Spring Banquet.

The Latin newspaper, Latinus Rumor, is the greatest feature of the Latin Club. The eight page issues, distributed monthly, included jokes, news, and articles about Roman traditions and myths.

The Latinus Rumor again had the honor of publishing an issue of the Missouri State Latin Paper, Acta, and exchanging papers with schools all over the United States.

To start the year, the Senior Red Cross gave a Halloween party at the Edgewood Children's Home. Several boys presented a puppet show for the young children. The members also took food and played games with the children.

When the Bloodmobile came in the fall, several of the members worked in it.

Every other Tuesday, some of the members of the club visited and entertained a 15-year-old girl in Glendale, who was stricken with polio. At Christmas a party was given for this girl by the club.

The Red Cross also spent some time working at the Toy Shop, where they repaired broken toys.

To make money for the school chest, which is sent overseas, the club frequently sold cookies after school.

The Red Cross sponsored the nail drive booth at the Dance Carnival.

In February it gave a Valentine's party for the children at Edgewood and in the spring the club visited an old folks' home and gave entertainment.

The Junior Red Cross started something new this year in the way of officers. They elected a secretary-treasurer, who handled the money and took roll and minutes. However, instead of electing a president, the club decided to have several chairmen. Each chairman was in charge of one particular meeting.

The first project of the Junior Red Cross was to collect the membership dues. They collected almost one-hundred dollars.

The club also filled over two hundred Junior Red Cross boxes to send overseas. The boxes contained such things as soap, wash cloths, tooth brushes and toothpaste, pencils, paper, and perhaps a piece of jewelry or a small game.

When the Bloodmobile came, the club advertised it by washing windshields in some of the local parking lots.

At Christmas a committee of six boys picked up the St. Louis Carol Association cans and delivered them to group leaders here in Webster.

The Red Cross also sponsored a booth at the Dance Carnival in February.

Library Assistants

Essential to the function of the library was the group known as the Library Assistants. Their work was very helpful to the library and to the students who were constantly needing books and other material to read.

The main duties of the assistants were checking books in and out of the library, filing, and shelving them. They also kept the two library cases colorfully decorated on all special occasions throughout the year. The chairman of the decorating committee was Jerre Jo Savignac.

They gave two parties during the year. The first was their annual Christmas party, and the second was the picnic in the spring when pins were awarded. To receive a pin, an assistant must work in the library every day for two semesters, or every other day for three semesters.

As a going away present, seniors received a book of their choice from Miss Bynum.

They met on the second Wednesday of every month to discuss any questions or problems they might have. These meetings were usually followed by an informal party.

Office Assistants

The office assistants are divided into two groups: those who work in the office for Mr. Winton and those who work in the counselors’ office for Mrs. Howard.

The qualifications for Mrs. Howard’s assistants are to have good grades, a study hall, and a willingness to work.

Their duties are to distribute the absentee lists, pick up attendance cards, and deliver messages to students and teachers.

The qualifications for Mr. Winton’s assistants are to have good grades and a study hall. They have to be taking typing, clerical, shorthand, or business English.

They handle all the money for the 103 accounts held by teachers, clubs, organizations, and special funds. Last year there was $74,000 deposited in the school vault and almost the same amount withdrawn. The assistants count all the money and wrap it in packages of certain amounts.

Once a month they prepare a statement for each of the 103 accounts. This statement tells how much has been deposited and how much withdrawn.

The office assistants all worked very hard during the year and deserve a great deal of credit.

A new concept in clubs this year was the Junior Reporter’s Club, an organization founded under the sponsorship of Mrs. Stolberg for the express purpose of gathering news about the Junior School to insure better representation in the Webster Echo.

In preceding years, it has been the custom of each homeroom to elect a representative to be a reporter. These representatives met occasionally to combine the news that they had gathered which was then given to a member of the paper staff who wrote the article. Last year the idea of having a special organization to collect the news was proposed, and was very widely discussed by the faculty and students of the Junior School. This year the Reporters’ Club was established. Its meetings were held the Friday after the paper was published. Although the news was collected by the club, the actual writing of the articles was done by Miss Burgess’s fourth hour English class.

Audio-Visual Operators

The Audio-Visual Operators are a group of students who provide an invaluable service to the school. This organization better known as A. V. O., sends operators for the movies and public address system in the school. The importance of their work was realized by everyone who profited from the services of the club.

The A. V. O. members deserved much credit for the success of assemblies, club meetings, banquets, and other affairs in which they ran the public address system. This organization showed several movies after school. These were shown in an effort to raise the necessary funds for the club.

One of the most important jobs of the club was showing special movies in the classrooms at the request of the teachers. Educational records, film-strips, and slides were available in addition to movies.

Careful instruction was given to the students in the operation of the machines. The experience gained in the club was not only valuable to the school, but educational and interesting to the operators.

The "co-op" program was a work-study training course which was a co-operative activity conducted by employers and the school.

The students taking this course were actually employed in a trade or occupation of their choice. The school provided instructions related to the students' work experience and additional instruction needed for their general education.

To be eligible for this training a student had to be sixteen years of age or over. They were selected on an individual basis according to their interests, desires, and qualifications for the occupation of their choice.

Some of the occupations in which these students engaged were assisting a doctor or dentist, clerking, carpentry, nursing, baking, journalism, and many others.

The students that took this course had three other courses besides "co-op."

The school day of most of these students ended at 12:30. They then went to their place of employment. If their employment did not start until 3:00, they were required to stay in school until 2:00.

The course was taught by Mr. Gordon Trotter.

Clean speech, living, sportsmanship, and scholarship is the YMCA platform. In becoming a member of a Hi-Y, one automatically comes under the influence of these principles, and at Webster there is no exception since all the organizations follow these rules.

The senior Hi-Y got off to a good start this year with the Friendship Dance which was held at Kirkwood. The Football Queens of both schools were crowned at this annual affair, jointly sponsored by the Webster and Kirkwood Hi-Y's.

The next project on the list was the sale of Buzz Books, the Webster High telephone directory, indispensable to any Webster student. A record number of almost two thousand Buzz Books was sold this year.

Another service project of Hi-Y-55 was the donation of two-hundred dollars to the Y Building Fund and one-hundred dollars to charity.

The numerous activities of the Hi-Y demonstrated its adherence to the Y code of clean and energetic living.

Every one of the fifteen active members in Hi-Y 56A worked hard throughout the year to carry out the many activities. The club's meetings were held every Monday night.

At one of the first meetings they decided to play two basketball games with Caroline Mission in St. Louis.

An educational field trip was also taken. The whole group toured the General Motor's plant, and everyone enjoyed the tour. The club's project at the Dance Carnival was the Dart Throw. It proved to be quite successful. Movies about the St. Louis Cardinals and Modern Aviation were shown to the group at one of the meetings as a special program.

The Club considered its most important project of the year to be its work for the World Service Commission of the National Y.M.C.A.

Hi-Y 56B started into its third year with enthusiasm, and immediately began to plan several projects to be carried out during the year. The first thing that was done was to send the officers to a Hi-Y leadership training program held at the Downtown Y.M.C.A. This program was to help Hi-Y officers gain a better prospective of what was expected of them, and learn how they could carry out their duties to the club’s advantage.

This year, as in past years, the interest in the Y sponsored organizations was very high. This fact was well illustrated by the formation of two sophomore Hi-Y’s and two Tri Hi-Y’s which were chartered by the National Hi-Y fellowship and taken under sponsorship by the Webster Groves Branch Y.M.C.A.

One of the highlights of the year was the Hi-Y’s participation in the basketball tournament which was held between various boys’ organizations in the St. Louis area. They became champions of the district after playing four games and winning them all. In the first game they downed Waterson Boys’ Club; next they overwhelmed the Carondelet Y; and then went on to defeat the South Side Arts Boys’ Club and the North Side Y to gain the championship.

Good sportsmanship was the evident factor in all relations with other organizations, and Hi-Y 57A strived constantly to live up to the Christian ideals and beliefs.

Service is the cornerstone of Hi-Y 57B's extensive program in acceptance of the Hi-Y principles. At a meeting in the fall, they voted to contribute to the Y Building Fund, and at Christmas a basket went to a needy family to help them through the trying times that accompany the end of the year.

In addition to service, the Hi-Y had many other activities. Some members participated in a basketball tournament which was held between various organizations of the area during the Christmas holidays. Unfortunately, they were eliminated in the first round of play. In late January the club sponsored a dance at the Y for the members of the organization and their dates. Another of the many activities to raise money was a booth at the Student Council Dance Carnival in early February.

Tri Hi Y 57A had an interesting program for the year. They held combined meetings with Tri Hi Y 57B and Hi Y 57A and B in which they discussed dating and other boy-girl relations. The girls also discussed these things when Maplewood Hi-Y was their guest. Other discussions were also held. During the year speakers were invited to talk to the girls on religious problems.

From the sale of Christmas cards, seventy dollars were given to the Y for upkeep and other expenses. Money was also made to fill Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets with food for a needy family.

Tri Hi Y 57B invited guest speakers from a variety of fields. These included an airline stewardess, a representative from a secretarial school, and an expert on cosmetics.

Charity projects were a part of the 1954-1955 programs. Efforts were made to adopt a family through the Red Cross. Money from cookie sales was given to the Y building fund. Christmas found the girls decorating a Christmas tree at the Y for the janitor and his wife.

The Tri Hi-Y is a group of girls similar in many respects to the groups of boys who call themselves Hi-Y. It is a Christian organization sponsored by the YMCA. The main objective is to create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of Christian character. This is accomplished by working and having fun among themselves and by helping others.

Tri Hi-Y 1958-1B

This particular Tri Hi-Y meets every Wednesday afternoon after school at the Congregational Church. Their meetings are a combination of business and pleasure. At many of the meetings there were speakers; a woman who had ridden a bicycle through Europe came and told of her experiences, while another guest spoke about teaching as a profession.

The girls do much charity work such as taking a group of orphans to the zoo. By giving bake sales and other group activities, the Tri Hi-Y raised money for these projects.

Anyone who had an interest in horses, riding, helping in the promotion of good sportsmanship, or most important, in having a good time, could join the Riding Club. The members of this organization enjoyed their club more than any of their activities. The Riding Club is not a new organization. The girls went riding once a week, usually on Monday. Some of the members received special training and instruction, such as learning how to jump, and other riding talents.

Usually ten to fourteen girls could be seen at Bar X Ranch or Valley Mount, saddling their horses and riding through the narrow winding trails in the woods.

After the rides, everyone, in high spirits, would stop and have a coke and hamburger. "Riding day" was certainly enjoyed by all concerned. This year the Sophomores and Juniors outnumbered the seniors in the membership of the club. Mr. Brucker was the club's sponsor.
As in previous years, all freshman sports were ably and enthusiastically supported by the Freshman Pep Club.

Many ninth grade girls tried out for "C" team cheerleader positions, and the eight who were chosen led the excited audiences in cheers throughout the season.

These girls have helped to promote school spirit by supporting the athletic program in their own grade.

Sophomore Pep Club

The Sophomore Pep Club started the year with a good deal of pep and enthusiasm, which built up as the year went on. The members attended all of the "B" team football games, both at home and away. There was a telephone committee which arranged transportation to all of the away games.

They had two major money making projects during the year. For the first one they opened the basketball season in true Statesman style by selling orange and black basketball pencils.

This is one of the ways in which they promote better school spirit. In February the club sponsored a booth at the annual Dance Carnival where they sold "All Day Cookies."

The girls ended the year with an informal banquet in the school cafeteria. Entertainment was provided by some of the members.

They presented their class with the money left in their treasury.

The organization was ably sponsored by Miss Ellen Gantner, who devoted much time and energy to making the club a success.

If you attended any of Webster's basketball games, you probably noticed the powerful cheering section at the south end of Robert's Gym. These boys were all members and pledges of the Webster Lettermen's Club.

The purpose of the organization was to promote better school spirit in sports and to give recognition to boys receiving major letters.

To qualify for membership one had to have a major letter or be participating in some major sport at the time. If a pledge did not earn a major letter, he was dropped from the organization.

The Letterman's Club had several money making projects during the year. The first of these was the "Sweetheart Coronation," which was given in November. Another dance was held in January, and it's theme was "Evening in Paris." For this dance everyone dressed "Frenchy" and several of the members provided entertainment. Another project was the sale of orange and black shakers at the football and basketball games.

The Sports

"... Strength thy banner lends us, victory sure attends us . . . "
Rated as the "team to beat" in the Suburban League in pre-season predictions, Webster's powerful squad not only lived up to this measuring stick, but greatly surpassed it. The high school dream team rambled through their nine game schedule soundly crushing every opponent they met, and were rated the number one team in the state by the Sport's Writers Association.

During the season the team displayed an overwhelming offense which amassed a total of 260 points, while the stone wall defense allowed only 47 points, to their opponents. The offense was sparked by a magic backfield fronted by a workhorse line, and together they carried Webster to its most successful season. "Five" members received All District honors: Charlie James, Glen St. Pierre, Mike Noonan, Olin Lippincott, and Henry Kuhlmann. Kuhlmann was also a unanimous decision for All State.

The Webster High Varsity basketball team had a very successful season in winning eighteen games and losing only five. After starting the season by traveling to Springfield, Missouri, and losing their first game, the team bounced back to win three in a row. After losses to Cleveland and Maplewood in the Normandy Tournament, they won five games. Following a loss to Brentwood in a league match, the Statesmen had a winning streak of nine in a row. The final game of the season was lost to Kirkwood in the upset of the regional finals. Kirkwood had lost twice to Webster earlier in the year. For the third straight year Webster won first place in the Suburban League Invitational Tournament.

Among the more outstanding happenings of the year were an unusual stalling game with St. Charles, a 95-59 point victory over Wellston, and last second victories over Clayton and Kirkwood.

This year's team was composed of seven seniors and eight juniors.

Webster's wrestling team had an outstanding season this year, compiling a record of ten wins and three losses, and taking fourth place in the state meet. Mickey Stewart and Dick Cox each got third place honors, Ellsworth Schellenberg and Bill Detjen each got a second place, and Olin Lippincott won his match to become state heavyweight champion.

This year Coach Bryant also awarded nineteen minor letters, to the outstanding grapplers who helped make the excellent record Webster had this year. Nineteen major letters were awarded.

The 1954 baseball season proved very successful to the Webster "Statesmen." They won eighteen games, lost one, and tied one. Their only defeat came at the hands of University City in the State Regionals. They had beaten University City previously in a league game. Under coach Gaines' direction the squad ran up a total score of 196, while their opponents' score totaled only 67. They also won the Suburban League Championship for the sixth time in the last nine years.

The golfers breezed through their eleven matches, winning all of them by comfortable margins. The greatest margin of victory was over Coyle in the second match of the year. The team won by seventy-two strokes. During the season the three top men, Jay Aldinger, Bill Johnson, and Al Quevereaux, consistently scored in the high 30’s and low 40’s. The only match they lost, by only one stroke, was to St. Louis U. High in the district tournament. Even so they continued their undefeated string of victories and ran the total to 60 by the end of the season.

The highlight of the season was the new record in the broad jump which was set by Bill Crigler at the state meet.

Tennis

The Webster Groves High School tennis team for 1954 had a very successful season. They won five league matches and lost four. In the non-league matches they had a record of two wins and one loss.

Record: won 7, lost 5.

For thirty-seven years, participation of girls in sports and increasing and maintaining high standards of sportsmanship have been promoted at Webster by the Girls Athletic Association.

Requirements for joining G. A. A. are not difficult. A girl must earn one hundred points to be eligible. Then after she has joined she must keep up fifty points a semester by participating in intramural sports.

The organization is not all sports, however. Many other activities are carried on, such as "Dads' Night." This is usually either a picnic or an informal supper held in the fall for the girls and their fathers.

In the spring there were two important events. The first was the Kampus King Dance. For this event five senior boys were elected as Jacks and one was crowned Kampus King. The second important event in the spring was the Awards Banquet. Here the newly elected officers were introduced, dinner was served to mothers and daughters, entertainment was provided, and major and minor awards were distributed.

Girls Basketball

One Hundred Twenty-two
Participation in intramural and class hockey games has long been a favorite activity for Webster girls. It is a sport that requires physical endurance, co-ordination, and a co-operative spirit. If a girl wishes to become a member of the class and varsity teams, she must display good team play, exact timing, and quick thinking. This year, as in the past, three class teams were chosen. A varsity team was then selected from the outstanding players of these teams.

The three groups participated in the annual Sports Day at Washington University. There they lost two games and tied one. Many of the team members stayed for the clinic which was held after the close of the last game.

The rest of the year was spent in close competition with other county high schools: Maplewood, Kirkwood, University City, Clayton, and Normandy. The seniors ended their year with an undefeated season. A varsity team was then chosen with Gale Eddie elected as captain.

This year girls basketball enjoyed its usual popularity among Websterites. Intramural teams were chosen and four games were scheduled for each team. After these games were played, from the list of eligible girls class teams were chosen, and later a varsity team was chosen.

Webster High acted as hosts to the five county schools represented. Webster had approximately one hundred girls participating in the event, acting as hostesses and participating in team play. The Sports Day enjoyed its usual success and the teams participating spent an invigorating day on the courts. The game involves a great deal of stamina, precision and alertness in handling the ball, and offered exciting challenge to many of the girls.

One of the outstanding features of the year was the annual St. Louis County Sports Day.
Volleyball

Softball

One Hundred Twenty-four
One of the oldest girls sports at Webster is intramural volleyball. It is also one of the favorites, as was shown by the willing participation of such a great number of girls.

Each volleyball team played four games. After the close of the intramural season, twelve girls who had attended all their games were selected from each grade to be on its class team. These class teams played the teams from other county schools.

The outstanding players on the three class teams were then chosen to play on the varsity volleyball team. They in turn played the varsity teams of the other schools.

The coming of spring means another softball season to many of the senior school girls. This is the last sport offered in the year, and is therefore the last chance for a girl to earn her points. Fifty points were given to a person if she attended all her intramural games. The girls on the class teams received one hundred extra points, and the members of the varsity team received an additional fifty points.

Anyone was eligible to take part in the intramural competition in which each team played four games.

The teams rotated positions during their games; therefore placing emphasis on the more fundamental skills such as effective serving and spiking.

The games were refereed by qualified students. These students passed an intramural rating test which was sponsored by the St. Louis Board of Women Officials.

Volleyball, like the other intramural sports, has a highly competitive spirit, but good sportsmanship and fun have always remained most important.

To be eligible for a class team a player had to attend all her games. The girls on the class teams were selected according to their cooperation, sportsmanship, and ability.

After the class teams played all their games, the varsity team was chosen. This team was composed of the girls who showed up exceptionally well on the class teams. Both class and varsity teams played several of the county schools.

OUR POLICY

We write this paper (Paper #1!) for the heck of it. We censor this paper because they won't print it if we don't. We publish this paper because the yearbook staff has three pages left with nothing to put on them. (They still have three pages left with nothing on them, don't they?)

!! Important News Bulletin !!

Word has just reached the editor of Bi Minute Blah that the Kremlin has given the world 24 hours to get out!

Deadeditorial

As usual, Bi Minute Blah, is living up to its policy of presenting purely biased views of weighty school problems, boring editorials, and various fragments of poor feature entertainment. In an effort to maintain this policy, we shall always do our best to misreport all school events and furnish students with a really DRY editorial dealing with school problems neither controversial nor debatable. Is that clear now?

In this issue we shall take up the desperate situation of Webster's rubbish cans. Have you ever stopped to consider how lucky we are to have these useful, as well as attractive, cans? Consider, at every corner, they are beautiful objects of architectural genius, wrought of gorgeous dull brown steel. These cans furnish ample haven for essays and other superfluous paper (including office summons), as well as cheese sandwiches which have been toasted on one side only (of course!)

In a recent survey, it has come to the attention of the staff that every-one has not been seizing the opportunity to use these little gems of sanitary utility, thus leaving the halls cluttered with the previously mentioned paper and uncomposted cheese sandwiches. We are trying valiantly to correct this situation by appealing to you for help and cooperation. Please, hereafter, you serious-minded, intelligent school citizens (now don't deny it, we know you are!) make an effort to turn those essays in to your English teacher (an F is better than a D), answer those summons to the office, (the Dean really isn't a bad guy at all), and eat your cheese sandwiches like a good child—(you might as well get used to them, because they always have and always will be toasted on one side at Webster!)

FLASH!

Early this morning as the cold gray dawn was breaking, many loyal Webster students were aroused from their peaceful slumber to the sound of sirens screeching through the atmosphere. Little did they know that, as they were settling back for two more hours of sleep, one of the most beloved landmarks, one of the most respected of all institutions in our fair city, was burning to the ground. Yes, at 5:32 this morning, Hompe Famshey High School disappeared and now, in its place, is a pile of smelly, smouldering ashes.

Already as this paper goes to press a campaign has been started by some of the more loyal seniors to collect money. Of course, this money will not be used to rebuild the school, but instead to carry our fight to the Supreme Court for a recreation center at 100 Selma Avenue. For years students have protested that school is just too exhausting, that there is no intelligent reason why we should be forced to sit through six hours of torture just because we are the future citizens of America (Rah! Rah!) And after all, why should we kill ourselves in school so as to be able to kill ourselves working afterwards?

Many girls have sold some of their treasured cashmere sweaters to Ladue and Clayton students whose schools are still standing firm and untouched. Boys are selling their cars, their pouches, and their class rings.

J. D. Nolan has consented to present the student body in Court, and Ann Garwood has volunteered to merely sit in the front row and smile at the jury.

We feel, that with the support of the entire student body, we can easily transform this tragic disaster into a beneficial happening. So donate your money, your efforts, and your time and we will have our recreation center, thus saving the Webster firemen the trouble of putting out another high school fire. (We did a pretty good job, didn't we, kids?)

One Hundred Forty-one
CLUB CHATTER

New this year is a club designed to run the cafeteria out of business, the Pouchmen’s Club! This club consists of loyal pouchers who bring their lunches from home. Among the social functions of the pouchers was a “Pouchluck Dinner” at which the Pouchmen swapped pouches. Before the meal they loyalty marched around the table in a solemn line and chanted their “Pouchmen Mater” to the tune of “Old Missouri.”

Then they put their pouches over their hearts and seriously said the “Pouchmen’s Creed”: “On my honor I’ll do my best to bring my pouch like all the rest.” No one “pouches” before he says the Creed. A few of the other slogans are: 1) Girls like boys who carry pouches! and 2) United we pouch, divided we slouch!

In addition, the ingenious pouchers have composed a sweetheart song which runs, “If I give my pouch to you . . . will you handle it with care . . .”

There are no officers in the Pouch Club because one of the mottoes is “All pouchers are created free and equal.” Several of the holidays observed by the loyal Pouchers were: Multiple-pouch Day, Color-Pouch Day, Picnic-pouch Day, and First Anniversary. To prove that they are good citizens and interested in helping their fellow men, there is the “Pouches to Russia” movement and foreign “Pouch Pals.” These two completed the Pouch Club’s foreign interests.

The exclusive pouchmen eat in Pouchman’s paradise, an area reserved exclusively for loyal members. Each poucher gets a demerit every time he breaks down and buys lunch.

The last I heard, the Pouch Club was printing identification cards to demonstrate their pride in membership. The great movement has sprung like a mushroom growing to the Senior girls’ “Pouchette” Club and Junior Pouch Club. Where will it all end?

Gold-digger—a woman after all
Nonsense—an elephant hanging over the edge of a cliff and holding on to a daisy
Blotter—something you look for while the ink dries
Mealtime—when youngsters sit down to continue eating
Gossip—something negative that is developed and then enlarged
Budget—a record of what it should have been spent for

IT’S A FACT

Once upon a time there lived a small boy. He was so small that his nose was even with the first step of the front stairs. One day he was walking down by the railroad tracks. Just as he started to go across he caught his belt on a railroad tie. Then to his surprise and yours too, probably, a train started coming. As the train got within fifty feet the boy started to get excited and with good reason. Well, as the train got within 10 feet the boy yelled stop. This is too hard to believe so let’s say the train went on and killed him! What a bloody mess.

If in doubt...THINK!

The Senior Class Will

We, the lucky, lucky seniors hereby will to you, the unfortunate underclassmen these following outstanding characteristics found in some of our well-known classmates:
1. Jim Johanson’s height to coming basket ball teams.
2. Joan Coleman’s dimples.
3. Margret Schuhay’s voice.
4. Hank Kuhiman’s scrapbook of clippings.
5. Ronnie Thompson’s sense of humor.
6. Paul Stein’s knack of always saying the right thing at the right time.
7. J. D. Nolan’s booming voice.
8. Paul Hawkinson’s parking space in front of school.
9. Rose Mary Adams’ sports ability.
10. Larry Marshall’s divine looks.
11. Sally Nisbet’s sneeze.
12. Steve Brown’s tremendous personality.
13. The Senior boys’ ability to cut in line without being caught.
