motion that is rapid, continuous, progressive, all-encompassing. This motion is not hampered by tradition; it is revolutionary and unique. The work of the present, of "now," will set the direction of the path of the future.

Thus, we who exist "now" must do more than just be swept along this path of motion; we must guide and control it—we must create new paths.
and lay the plans for the motion of the future. We must be the leaders who formulate the new ideas and techniques. We must provide the motivation...

There have been many changes made in the library this year, all of them designed to improve the library's service to the school. Among these innovations are the introduction of a more complete, efficient system for checking cards, the addition of more than a thousand new books to the shelves, and the presentation of microcard readers and an extensive microfilm library.

Car smash in the courtyard ... cotton candy ... the mudslide at a windy forty degrees ... "Sixteen in Webster Groves"—for anyone who missed it the first time...

Nearly all school organizations participate in this annual fund-raising project, the Fall Festival. Sponsored by the Student Council, the event offers to students and the public an evening of amusement and games, complete with carnival trappings.

All German students are members of German Club.
In spite of the confusion produced by the music spewing forth from a radio, people running in and out of their headquarters, and the noise of typewriters clicking away, the staff of The Webster Echo published ten notable issues this year. As last year, the newspaper was free to all students and included six pages. Besides publishing the paper, the staff also constructed paper dolls for their Paper Doll Prom, issued and sold this year's Turkey Day program, and attended the folding parties prior to each day of circulation.

The journalism class, their apprentices, contributed to the paper and at the same time prepared for taking over the responsibility. The annual banquet in April was the occasion of their graduation to the staff.

Marching Band and Majorettes
The promotion of school spirit is an involved, time-consuming task. A large part of the job is the responsibility of the MARCHING STATESMAN BAND. With stirring marches and somber alma mater, it is their assignment to stir the fans to a peak of excitement. This performance requires the highest training in both musicianship and showmanship. Through practice the high standard of performance, dictated by tradition, is achieved.

The thud of shoulder pad on shoulder pad, the smell of sweat, the graceful arch of a pass falling into sure hands, the surging power of a runner breaking into the clear told Webster that the 1966 football Statesmen were on the move again.

Football

The team was distinguished by the unusually large number of sophomores and returning lettermen. Though in a different league and faced with more challenging opponents, the team still showed the same poise and swing that has characterized the Big Orange. Webster proudly looked on as Coach Jack Jones' mob pushed to another great season.

As the purpose of the French Club is to stimulate an interest in French culture and to provide students with an opportunity for activities not undertaken in the classroom, the club's calendar of events was planned accordingly. This year the club enjoyed a few French movies, a talk with the newly-arrived French teacher, and a trip to the art museum to see the visiting Degas collection. Some members also concocted a French meal for the rest of the club. Le Circle Francais concluded the year's activities with the annual picnic at Blackburn Park.

The Student Council is the main service organization of the school. Though Council like the other student governmental bodies is undergoing a definite change, its principal function remains the same—that is, to inform the students of school activities. This purpose is concealed behind the myriad of other projects that Council plans and executes. One of these is Hello Week, designed to acquaint the students with each other and with the faculty. Another is the magazine sales campaign which earns money to support not only Council activities but numerous other clubs as well. Council also sponsors the American Field Service supper to raise money for our foreign exchange student. Aside from these, the direction of the Fall Festival, the preparation for Turkey Day activities, the handling of all-school elections, and the ordering and selling of booster tags are included on the long list of services rendered by this organization.
When it was learned that the members of Latin Club had been wearing their helmets in the hall, the mystery of the holes in the second floor ceiling was solved; their swords had also been causing serious scratches on the door of 360, and the salutations of “Hail Caesar” were beginning to develop into nervous fits among the teachers. This enthusiasm of the members of Latin Club was demonstrated further when they performed a skit at Columbia to benefit Missouri schools, and at the annual Christmas party which included a Peter-Van-Cleave-type Santa Claus. The Conventus Latinus is one of the school’s most active clubs and consists of about sixty members, many of whom help to publish Latinus Rumor, Webster’s Latin publication.

Mu Alpha Theta

For seniors interested in finding out about a variety of mathematical topics not normally covered in the classroom, the math club features lectures by qualified speakers from the St. Louis area. Learning how and why computers work, from theory based on Boolean algebra to actual practice in computer programming, occupied members at several meetings and highlighted this year’s activities.

Mu Alpha Theta, Webster’s chapter of the national mathematics organization, also maintains a math library and sponsors a tutoring service, assisting students in algebra, geometry, and trigonometry.

In a sport as individual as wrestling, personal injuries can seriously affect the overall team record. The Webster wrestlers met with this obstacle of injuries during the first part of their season. But the development of younger squad members and the return of injured men to the roster provided the opportunity the team needed to gain momentum. As the result of a concentrated effort during the final weeks of the season, the team earned itself a respectable record and the admiration of their competitors.
The product of much hard work and practice three days a week at the South Grand YMCA under Coach Jack Jones was a swimming team ranked number one in the state. This practice, coupled with a determination to win and win constantly, paid off as Webster defeated Kirkwood, the defending state champions and a powerful Clayton team whose impressive 14—0 record Webster shattered. These and other important victories revealed a surprising and commendable team.

Audio Visual Service

Audio-Visual aids have come to occupy an increasingly important role in the classroom, thus, it is the responsibility of A. V. O. to provide the skilled operators and the equipment necessary for proper presentations. The members of this organization devote both study halls and after-school hours to training and to service and are thoroughly acquainted with the classroom equipment. The more experienced of the group also serve on sound crew and as audio resource duplicators and maintenance technicians.

Light Crew

The light crew, with their advisors Mr. L. Hoffman and Mr. Liu, not only plays an indispensable part working in assemblies, Vespers, and Spring Show, but also provides light at the school dances. Much time is devoted by the members of the crew, in fact, so much time that the inside of the light booth in the auditorium is as familiar to these boys as Mr. Smith's office is to some others.
Short stories spiced with humor ... poems ... essays discussing anything from current events to antique furniture ... pages displaying imaginative art work—these are the ingredients of Webster's literary magazine, Potpourri. Potpourri, defined, is "a mixture", and that is what this magazine strives to be. Staffed by a group of interested students and faculty advisors, Potpourri has continued to bring to the students the best of its own creations.

A thorough understanding of all forms and types of music is essential to the proper appreciation of any composition. Thus, the orchestra strives to develop a familiarity with and an awareness of music and, at the same time, to perfect their musical skills. Preparation for the annual orchestra assembly, tour and spring concert keeps the two goals in balance and provides the members with opportunities to practice their skills before a live audience. The desire to improve and to explore the musical arts has been the aim of the orchestra as a whole and is exemplified in the performance and attitudes of its individual members.

And now to penetrate the aura of mystery which surrounds the world of the Echo people. We are a conglomeration of the sometimes lazy, mostly devoted and oftentimes inspired. The joy of being the first to see the completed yearbook is only one of the rewarding aspects of the nerve-racking work which includes the coverage of school activities for the articles, the arrangement of pictures and articles for every page, and such tiresome jobs as typing the school's address on piles of envelopes for the printers. Along with the normal work involved in putting out a yearbook, we embarked on a few different projects. We undertook the job of a summer supplement, thereby giving ourselves early deadlines and some pathetically frantic situations. (There's got to be some post office open until six o'clock!)

As a part of our advertising campaign we arranged for the distribution of such novelties as homemade fortune cookies, bearing messages designed to stimulate sales. (Take an Echo to your Batcave.)

The annual Echo Coronation Ball was another of our major projects. The theme of the dance was "Checkmate" which called for boxes, tape, paint and glitter that miraculously combined and emerged as an abstract chess set.

But, naturally, our main objective this year was to produce a yearbook in which would be incorporated the students, teachers, activities, and spirit that combined to make your year at Webster.

Who are the sportsmen at Webster? Where do the swoons and gushes of the female sex originate? Who are those masculine specimens that wear the bright orange "W's" on their jackets? The answer: the members of the Lettermen's Club of Webster Groves, who have continued their tradition of selling refreshments at half-time and ushering during Vesper Services.

The primary aim of the Lettermen’s Club is to promote interest and participation in athletics. To become a member a student must earn a varsity letter in any of Webster’s nine sports and be willing to be active in all the club’s activities. At the end of the year, the club holds a party, which begins with a banquet at noon and continues with an all-day session of sports and a party at night.
Webster’s cheerleaders are a unique combination of looks, energy, and strong vocal chords. Our eight rah-rah girls, whose main job is to cheer on our Statesmen at all games, also find time to help with the presentation of the Pep Assembly and the breakfast of Turkey Day.

The above students have maintained a 3.250 grade average.
This year, the activities of the Senior Class Cabinet have been numerous and extensive. To raise money for successful year-end projects, they conducted a car wash, a rummage sale and bake sales during the summer; they sponsored the fall festival and sold megaphones and jerseys as well. To carpet the senior lounge, they executed the eagle stamp campaign for the most expensive and best class gift ever presented to the school. The cabinet also planned the traditional senior projects—the prom and luncheon, senior day and the junior-senior game, in addition to some entirely new projects—the hello party for new seniors, the alum party in the new lounge, and the leadership drive. In the interest of the whole school, the cabinet planned the flaming “W” and displayed posters before games. And to organize graduation activities for the seniors, they ordered the name cards and announcements and fitted the caps and gowns. Most of the work of this vital organization has gone unrecognized by the students, but all of it is noticeable in the success of the class of 1967.

We are Little Rascals. We've had our Spanky's and Darla's and even our Alfalfa's and Buckwheat's. We've played hookey at least a thousand times and had the bestest of picnics. We were naughty sometimes, but we had fun. We're different from the old Little Rascals, though. We've had a brand new senior lounge for senior slump and our very own foreign boy. We've had a big parade and a great big fire, and we R.O.C.K.ed with the Little Brown Jug. We are the new Little Rascals. And we're bigger and better and cuter and funnier and better and . . .
